This work has been consistently supported by Sönke Schmidt, Nicholas Kaye and Dora Balazs from JLS in the context of the “European Forum for the Prevention of Organised Crime”. We would also like to thank JLS for inviting us to present this work at the workshop of 19 September 2005 in London, organised by the UK Presidency of the EU on “Regulation of Not for Profit Organisations workshop: Proposed EU Code of Conduct”.
Abstract

The report "Analysis of the EU10 Non-profit Sector for Monitoring and Control" has been written in the context of the European Commission forum "Support against Terrorist Financing" by Directorate General Justice, Liberty and Security (JLS), and of a Joint Research Centre (JRC) research project to support monitoring and control for EU aid funds. The report's purpose is to give an overview of the non-profit sector in EU10 with specific attention to the prevention of fraudulent use of funds in this sector, in general, and terrorist financing in particular. This report is complementary to the report "Analysis of the EU15 Non-profit Sector for Monitoring and Control" which sets out the context of the current work in detail and also contains information regarding the classification and definitions used for the non-profit sector.

The main aim of the analysis is to present an overview of the non-profit sector in EU10\(^1\) with regard to the prevention of fraudulent use of funds in the non-profit sector, in particular for financing of terrorism. The basic purpose of this report is to support EU regulatory work for the non-profit sector with a comparative analysis of information for standardisation of terms, requirements for registration, monitoring, accreditation and tax status of these organisations.

The regulatory framework for Non-Governmental Organisations consists of a series of different laws and regulations, including public benefit provisions, tax legislation and the legal framework for public participation. The majority of information on the non-profit sector was collected from state institutions and organisations of the Member States. Collected information was analysed and then compared. Due to the difficulties in handling various languages, the diversity of the non-profit sector and the short time available to complete this work, the report should be regarded mainly as a reference document. The information contained in this document may not be complete.

\(^{1}\) It includes the following countries: Cyprus, Czech Republic, Estonia, Hungary, Latvia, Lithuania, Malta, Poland, Slovakia, and Slovenia.
The expansion of the European Union marks a changing and defining period for the non profit sector of the accession countries. The issues related to expansion were numerous and complex. This process has resulted in the governments and parliaments of the accession countries creating institutions and mechanisms to facilitate the integration process.

The work "Analysis of the EU10 Non-Profit Sector for Monitoring and Control" contributes to the main objective of supporting EU regulatory work for the non-profit sector and the transparency and traceability for aid funds. This report is complementary to the report "Analysis of the EU15 Non-profit Sector for Monitoring and Control" which sets out the context of the current work in detail and also contains information regarding the classification and definitions used for the non profit sector.

Primarily the aim of this work is to present an overview of the non-profit sector in EU10 with regard to the prevention of fraudulent use of funds in the non-profit sector. The basic purpose of this report is to support the EU regulatory work for the charitable/non-profit sector through a comparative analysis of information with a view to standardising terminology, comparing requirements for registration, accreditation, and monitoring. The report also includes an overview of the tax status of Non-Governmental Organisations, as well as short overview of the gambling sector in the EU10.

This work can be seen as an auxiliary means to support transparency and traceability for aid funds. The work presented pertains to the JRC research project "Transparent Aid – A System to Support Monitoring of Aid Funds" (TR-AID) to build automated IT-based tools to support monitoring and control tasks for activities financed through aid funds. TR-AID started in 2004 in the Unit "Support to External Security" of the Institute for the Protection and Security of the Citizen, at JRC-Ispra. The main objective of TR-AID is to contribute towards the effective use of aid funds by helping to avoid the misuse of such funds. The data collection effort that it entails is meant to complement official aid activity databases. Sources of information will include European Commission databases, OECD databases, open sources (e.g. web sites of both non-profit and donor organisations) and third-party databases, such as company directories.

It needs to be noted that due to the language difficulties, the diversity of the sector and the short time available to complete this work, the report may not contain complete information regarding the non profit sector in the EU10.

Chapter 1. Definitions in the National Laws of EU10 for Different Types of Entities

Many diverse types of bodies are described as being NGOs. There is no generally accepted definition of an NGO and the term carries different connotations in different countries. At the same time there are some fundamental features. An NGO must be independent of the government, an NGO may not be constituted as a political party and it may be non-profit-making organisation.

In most EU10 countries, the two common fundamental NGO legal forms are associations and foundations. Association is recognised/accepted as a basic form of membership organisation and foundation is considered as a basic form of non-membership organisation. Other terminology has also been used in both common and civil law countries, including charities, funds, societies, non-profit organisations and others, such as public institutions in Lithuania, non-investment funds in Slovakia, institutes in Slovenia.

1. Association

Associations are membership-based organisations whose members, or their elected representatives, constitute the governing body of the organisation. They can be formed to serve the public benefit or the mutual interest of members. Associations can generally pursue activities directed for the public benefit or for the mutual interest of members.

An association’s highest governing body is the general assembly of its members (or for certain large associations, their duly elected representatives). Several countries require associations to have a management body in addition to the general assembly to deal with the everyday affairs of the association. Countries may also specify (or require the organisation’s statute to specify) a variety of other features of associations, such as the criteria for accepting/expelling members, members’ rights and duties, as authority to represent the NGO, and other issues of internal governance.

In order to found an association, laws of Hungary and Slovenia require ten founders for an association, and Poland requires fifteen. Estonia and Latvia require only two founders.

1.1. Cyprus

No information is available

1.2. Czech Republic

Associations of Citizens (hereinafter “Associations”) are membership organisations established by Czech Republic citizens to pursue common interests. Associations are generally regulated by the Law on Associations. Associations are permitted to engage in both mutual benefit and public benefit activities. Associations are, however, prohibited from engaging in functions reserved for the government or public administration. Members of associations may be natural persons, including foreigners, and legal bodies.

At least three citizens, one of them should be over the age of 18, can form a Preparatory (Founding) Committee that may establish an association.

The association becomes a legal entity upon obtaining certification of registration from the Ministry of Interior, or it becomes a legal entity by default if the Ministry does not inform the Preparatory Committee of its negative decision within 40 days of submission of the Establishment Proposal.

The association must not resemble a political party or religious congregation, for which there are specific laws. There should also be no evident military or paramilitary activities inherent in the purpose and the Statute of the association, nor any membership’s restrictions, benefits or obligations, which would violate basic human rights and freedoms.

3 Article 4, Law on Associations.

4 Article 5, Law on Associations.
1.3. Estonia

A non-profit association is a voluntary association of persons, both physical and legal, the objective or main activity of which shall not be the earning of income from economic activity.

The income of a non-profit association may be used only to achieve the objectives specified in its articles of association. A non-profit association shall not distribute profits among its members. A non-profit association is governed by the members and its internal documents (e.g. the Articles of Association).

The Non-profit Associations Act\(^5\) regulates the activities of all membership non-profit organisations. The Act states clearly that profit cannot be the principal purpose of the not-for-profit association and revenues raised may only be used to achieve statutory goals. The Act also specifies requirements for the members, order of admission, secession, exclusion of members, and the rights and obligations arising from membership. Members can be individuals as well as juridical persons.

Transformation of a non-profit association into a legal person of a different class is prohibited.

A non-profit association may be founded by at least two persons. The founders may be natural persons or legal persons.

In order to found a non-profit association, the founders shall enter into a memorandum of association. A memorandum of association shall set out:

1. the name, location, address and objectives of the non-profit association being founded;
2. the names and residences or locations, and the personal identification codes or registry codes of the founders;
3. the obligations of the founders with regard to the non-profit association;
4. the names, personal identification codes and residences of the members of the management board.

Upon conclusion of a memorandum of association, the founders shall also approve the articles of association of the non-profit association as an annex to the memorandum of association.

The memorandum of association and articles of association approved thereby shall be signed by all founders. A representative of a founder may sign the memorandum of association if the representative has been granted an authorisation document therefore. Articles of association shall be amended after entry in the register of the non-profit association and shall not require amendment of the memorandum of association.

The articles of association of a non-profit association shall be in writing. The articles of association shall set out:

1. the name of the non-profit association;
2. the location of the non-profit association;
3. the objectives of the non-profit association;
4. the conditions and procedure for membership in the non-profit association and for leaving and exclusion from the non-profit association;
5. the rights of members;
6. the obligations of members or the procedure for establishment of obligations for members;
7. upon the existence of departments, their rights and obligations;
8. the conditions and procedure for calling the general meeting and the procedure for adoption of resolutions;
9. the number of members of the management board or the maximum and minimum number of members;
10. the distribution of assets of the non-profit association upon dissolution of the association;
11. other conditions provided by law.

The articles of association may also prescribe other conditions which are not contrary to law. If a provision of the articles of association is contrary to a provision of law, the provision of law applies.

If the articles of association do not prescribe a term for the non-profit association, it shall be deemed to be founded for an unspecified term.

In the articles of association different names may be used for bodies and departments of non-profit associations than those provided by the law, however, in such case the articles of association shall indicate to which names provided by the law these names correspond to.

\(^5\) Non Profit Associations Act.
1.4. Hungary

An association is a self-governed, voluntarily established organisation which is formed for a purpose defined by its charter and which organises its members’ activities in order to achieve its aim. An association has members – called a "registered membership" under local law. At least ten natural persons and/or juridical entities are required to form an association. An association cannot be formed for the primary purpose of performing economic activities, nor can it be formed for criminal, military, totalitarian, or unlawful purposes.

1.5. Latvia

Association is a voluntary association of persons, founded to realize the goals stipulated by the Statute and having an unprofitable nature.

The administrative bodies of an association are a general meeting (meeting of the members) and the board. The articles of association may also provide for other administrative bodies and determine the procedure for their creation and their competence.

The highest body of an association is a general meeting.

All members of an association have the right to participate in general meeting, unless otherwise provided for by law. A member may also participate in a general meeting with the intermediation of a representative, unless otherwise provided for by law. An authorisation to participate and vote in a general meeting shall be issued in writing.

The board shall call a general meeting in accordance with the procedures prescribed by law or the articles of association in the cases determined by law or the articles of association, or if the calling of a general meeting is necessary in the interests of the association.

The board shall manage and represent the association.

The board may consist of one member or more members. The general meeting shall elect a chairperson of the board from the board members unless otherwise provided for by the articles of association.

Board members shall be natural persons with legal capacity. Not less than half of the board members shall be persons whose place of residence is Latvia.

The board shall administrate and manage the affairs of the association. It shall administrate the assets of the association and shall deal with its funds in accordance with laws, the articles of association, and decisions of the board or other bodies.

The board shall organise bookkeeping accounts for the association in accordance with legislative enactments and shall carry out other responsibilities in accordance with its competence as set out in the articles of association.

An association shall consist of at least two members if the articles of association do not provided for a larger number of members. After the association is registered in the register, the founders of the association gain the status of members of the association.

Each association shall keep a register of its members which shall indicate the name, surname, personal identity code and home address (name and address of a legal person) of each member. Information about member of the association shall be accessible only to the members of the relevant association, and to controlling and law enforcement institutions.

1.6. Lithuania

The registered office of the association shall be situated in the Republic of Lithuania. The association shall maintain at least one bank account.

No less than three legal entities or natural persons may form an association. The applicable statutory requirements are based strictly on membership

The members must observe the association statutes. The person who pursues interests contrary to the objectives of the association may not be admitted to the association.

The list of all the members must be held in the association, and the list of the members who belong to an affiliate must be held in that affiliate. Each association member shall have the right to familiarise himself with these lists.

The association member shall have the right to:

1.7. Malta

1.7.1. Overview

From a regulatory point of view, there is no overall authority responsible for NGOs. There are no provisions for their registration and there are no monitoring or supervisory structures. In Malta companies with the particular features of NGOs are currently affected by the absence of proper NGO legislation. There is no current full updated directory of NGOs in Malta, due mainly to the fact that there is no law that requires NGOs to register.

Malta volunteers operate either within organised bodies such as cooperatives, clubs, federations or outside such structures.

On 2005 some initiative was taken and all interested NGOs where brought together to propose recommendations for future NGO legislation in Malta. At present time Ministry for the Family and Social Solidarity presented the White Paper to the general public.

In order to fill substantial gaps in Maltese Non-Governmental sector, Ministry for the Family and Social Solidarity prepared and published sector related White Paper. Above mentioned White Paper briefly outlines the attached proposed legislation for the voluntary sector, namely, the Voluntary Organisations Act. The Voluntary Organisations Act assumes a detailed legal structure which emerges from another proposed Act which will amend the Civil Code.

The White Paper explains the rules on enrolment, outlines the functions of the Commissioner for Voluntary Organisations, of the Voluntary Organisations Fund and of the National Council for the Voluntary Sector. It addresses the important challenges of instilling and achieving transparency and accountability by allowing for monitoring without the need of undue interference.

1.7.2. Associations

According to the proposed amendments of the Civil Code some associations may be of private interest (such as when set up to support a specific person or group of named persons, or when it is set up to carry on a trade or profession) and others can have ‘social purposes’ or be ‘non-profit’, even if its purposes are not technically defined as being of a public nature.

Private Associations can register under this law and then the rules of law must be observed and all information required by law on registration and annually must be filed at the Registry. The law lists those items which must be stated in the statute and hence publicly disclosed for the various public interest reasons which have been mentioned above.

Associations are made up of persons. Persons associate together to achieve the purpose defined in the statute. These are organisations with members and need a democratic structure to determine decision-making powers (sports clubs, charitable or environmental groups and etc.).

1.8. Poland

1.8.1. Associations

Associations are membership organisations comprised of natural persons that are voluntary, self-governed and lasting non-profit unions.10

Sources of financing for Associations - Associations with legal entity can profit from different sources of financing:

1. public collections,
2. donations from companies and individuals, legacies,
3. subsidies from public administration,
4. incomes from real property, endowment or other capital revenues,
5. economic activity.

The right to found associations is vested in Polish citizens who have full capacity to conduct legal transactions and who have not been deprived of public rights.

At least 15 people who want to found an association adopt the association’s statute and select the founding committee.

The Law on Associations11 requires that an association’s statute must include:

1. a name of the association that distinguishes it from other associations, organisations, and institutions;
2. the seat and the territory of activities;
3. the goals of the association and the means for their achievement;
4. the ways of acquiring and losing membership, the rights and responsibilities of the members;
5. authorities of the association, the method of their election, the method of electing supplementary authority members, and the competence of the authorities;
6. the methods of representing the association and property obligations, as well as conditions under which resolutions of the associations are binding;
7. the ways of obtaining financial means and deciding upon members dues;
8. principles of changing the statute;
9. the method of dissolution.

If branches are contemplated, information about their creation and structure must also be stated.

(Article 40) A simple association must adopt regulations that specify its name, location, goals, territory, types of activities, and representative.

The highest authority of an association is a general assembly of its members. A general assembly of members decides upon all the matters on which the statute does not specify the competence of association’s authorities.

The statute may provide for a delegate’s assembly instead of a general assembly of members, or the substitution of a general assembly of members with a delegate’s assembly if membership of the association reaches a certain number specified in the statute. In such cases, the statute specifies the principles governing the election of delegates and their terms of office.

An association must have a board and an internal auditing organ.

The founding committee submits to the registry court a motion for registration with the following enclosures: the statute, a list of founders containing each founder’s first name, last name, date and place of birth, present address and signature, a protocol of founding committee selection and the address of the association’s temporary seat.

1.8.2. Simple Associations

A simple association is a simplified form of association, and it does not have the status of a legal person. At least 3 persons who wish to found a simple association adopt regulations for the association. The regulations must particularly specify the name of the simple association, its goals, territory, its kinds of activities, its seat, and representative. In writing, the founders notify the supervising agency that is appropriate for the seat about the founding a simple association. The notice must include the data mentioned in section 2 above.

If the activities of a simple association are not forbidden within 30 days from the day the supervising agency receives notice of the associations founding, the association may start its activities.

A simple association may not:
1. create local branches;
2. enter unions of associations;
3. include legal persons;
4. conduct economic activity;
5. accept donations, legacies or inheritances, receive public grants or use public support.

A simple association gains financial means for its activities from member contributions.

1.9. Slovakia

Associations are membership organisations created by citizens to pursue common interests. Three citizens are required to found an association (Article 6 (1), Law on Associations)\(^\text{12}\), and legal entities may be members of an association (Article 2(2), Law on Associations). No limitations are placed on the ability of foreign natural or legal persons to participate as members of associations.

Within broad parameters, associations are permitted to engage in both mutual benefit and public benefit activities (Article 4, Law on Associations). Associations are, however, prohibited from engaging in functions reserved to the government or public administration (Article 5, Law on Associations), and they are banned from being established for military activities or for purposes violating the human rights of others.

According to the Act No. 83/1990 on Associating of Citizens, the members of an association may be natural persons, including foreigners, as well as legal entities. However, only citizens of Slovak Republic may form the Preparatory Committee of minimum three members, one of which must be adult, which submits the Establishment Proposal and Association’s Statute to the Ministry of Interior for registration in order to obtain the status of a legal entity.

1.10. Slovenia

Associations are membership-based organisations established by and consisting of natural persons to pursue common interests\(^\text{13}\). Associations are generally regulated by the Associations Law, although specialized associations such as political parties, political movements, churches, and religious organisations are regulated under separate legislation. Foreigners who are permanent residents of Slovenia as well as temporary residents who have resided in Slovenia more than one year may found an association\(^\text{14}\). Associations cannot be established for the purpose of generating a profit, although they may engage in economic activities if the activities are related to and help promote the association’s objectives\(^\text{15}\).

Associations may engage in both mutual benefit and public benefit activities.

2. Foundation

Generally foundations require property dedicated to a specific purpose and are governed by a self-perpetuating board of directors. Foundations are generally described as capital based bodies without members. Most foundations must be dedicated to the public benefit.

2.2. Czech Republic

Foundations and funds are grant-making, asset-based organisations established by legal or natural persons for public benefit purposes. Foundations must maintain an endowment of at least 500,000 Czech Koruna (approximately €19,000). Funds have no endowment requirements and may use all of their assets to pursue their statutory purposes. Although neither form may engage in economic activities, both foundations and funds may organise cultural, social, sporting, and educational events, as well as lotteries, in order to raise funds. Foundations may hold up to 20% of the shares of joint stock companies and are subject to other investment rules. Funds are prohibited from investing in capital markets.

Self-perpetuating Board of Directors should govern both foundations and funds. The founder(s) should appoint the first board. Both must publish annual reports describing in detail their activities, income sources and use of property.

Both natural persons and legal bodies, including foreigners, may establish a foundation or a fund. To register, the founder(s) must present the proposal for registration to the district court, which is responsible for keeping the register of foundations and funds. The same court operates the register of commercial legal bodies. The proposal must be accompanied by the Articles of Incorporation in the form of a Founders’ Agreement, if there are two or more founders, or in the form of a Notary Act, if the founder is a single person. The Founder's Agreement must be signed on authority.

According to the Law on Foundations and Funds, the information provided in the Articles of Incorporation and in the Application for Registering must include the following:

1. the unique name of the foundation or the fund and address of its headquarters (seat);
2. the name of and other identification information about its founder(s) and their share in the property endowed;
3. the purpose for which the entity is being established (which must be for public benefit, compatible with examples set by the law);
4. in the case of a foundation, the list of endowment components and their identification together with certified overall value of listed endowment assets;
5. the names of the members of the first board of directors (no less than three natural persons) and of the supervisory board (for smaller funds there might be one single person – the Inspector);
6. the way in which the board of directors acts on behalf of the entity;
7. general rules by which the granting procedure to third persons will be regulated; and
8. a “ceiling” restricting the administrative expenses.

Within 30 days of registration, the board of directors of a foundation/fund must submit its Statute, which specifies in more detail the governing structure and proceedings, as well as grant-making rules and any other specific internal regulations.

2.3. Estonia

The Foundations Act states that a foundation is a non-membership legal entity set up to manage property and to pursue stated objectives. The Act sets limits on the activities of foundations, stating that a foundation is allowed to engage in economic activities, but that disbursements can only be made for charitable or social purposes. Founders of a foundation may be individuals as well as juridical persons, and further that it may be established by the last will and testament.

A foundation, recognized as a legal person in private law, is established to administer and use assets to achieve the objectives specified in its Articles of Association. Since a foundation has no members, it is governed according to the law and its Articles of Association. Upon the transfer of assets to a foundation, the founders’ right to direct their use is generally extinguished.

Founders of a foundation must adopt a foundation resolution, which may also be a part of a notarized will. Registration takes place in the registration departments of city and county courts, where registers of non-profit associations and foundations are maintained. Foundations may be founded by only one person.

19 Estonian Foundations Act, Articles 6 and 7.
A foundation shall be founded by a foundation resolution which shall set out:

1. the name, location and address of the foundation;
2. the names and residences or locations and addresses of the founders and their personal identification codes or registry codes;
3. the sum of money or other assets, and their value, to be transferred to the foundation by the founders;
4. the names, residences and personal identification codes of the members of the management board and supervisory board.

The founders shall also approve the articles of association of the foundation as an annex to the foundation resolution.

All founders shall sign a foundation resolution and the articles of association approved thereby. A foundation resolution and the articles of association approved thereby shall be notarised. A representative of a founder may sign if the authorisation document granted to the representative there for is notarised. Articles of association shall be amended after entry in the register of the foundation pursuant to the procedure provided for in Estonian Foundations Act.

2.4. Hungary

A foundation is an organisation established through a "Letter of Establishment" by any natural or legal person or by a business partnership without legal personality. A foundation must be established for long-term (or long-lasting) public interest purposes. After establishing a foundation, founders have only a limited power over its operations.

Organisations based on designated property, without members and that have stipulated objectives that serve a long-term public interest; the principal purpose cannot be to perform economic activities. They can either be "closed" foundations where the founder contributes all capital at the creation of the foundation, or "open" foundations where contributions from donors other than the founder are permitted in the future.

Private persons, legal persons, and unincorporated business associations (jointly referred to hereinafter as "founders") shall be entitled to form a foundation in a charter in order to serve a long-term public interest. A foundation may not be formed for the principal purpose of performing economic activities. A foundation shall provide sufficient assets for achieving its objectives. A foundation is a legal person.

A foundation is deemed established once it has been registered by the court.

Founders may be "private persons, legal persons and unincorporated business associations." "Individuals or private organisations" may found public benefit companies.

With regard to foundations, registration applications must be submitted by the founder together with the organisation's charter. The charter must contain the group's name, purpose, location, available assets and the manner in which the assets will be used. An open foundation needs to show sufficient capital to start operations, while a closed foundation must have enough capital to achieve its objectives. The law does not state a precise minimum amount or the manner by which it is calculated. In practice, the amount has generally been low, e.g., for open foundations, approximately € 1.100 is often considered sufficient. The amount needed for a closed foundation will vary depending upon its objectives. The founder may not withdraw a foundation after it is registered.

A foundation's founder has significant powers. The founder appoints and can change the governing body while retaining controlling influence on the use of assets and only the founder is entitled to amend the charter "without causing any injury to the foundation's name, purpose, or assets." The administrative body of a foundation is the board. The articles of association may provide for the creation of other administrative bodies, prescribing the procedure for their creation and their competence, and the granting of administrative competence to other subjects or their bodies.

Founders

A foundation may be founded by one or more persons. If a foundation has several founders, they shall realise their founder rights only jointly. Persons, who have granted assets to the foundation, after it has been registered in the register, shall not be considered founders.

A foundation is founded based on the decision of a person to found a foundation or on a will.

The articles of association of the foundation shall set out:

1. the name of the foundation;
2. the objective of the foundation;
3. the procedure according to which assets shall be transferred to the foundation;
4. the procedure according to which the funds of the foundation shall be used;
5. the period of operation of the foundation (if the foundation is set up for a specific time period);
6. the procedure for division of assets in the case of liquidation of the foundation;
7. the procedure for appointing and recalling board members and the term of office;
8. the procedure for appointing and recalling members of other administrative bodies (if such are provided for) and the term of office;

10. procedure for making amendments to the articles of association.

The articles of association may prescribe a set of beneficiaries. In case of doubt, a beneficiary shall be considered to be a person to whom funds may be paid from the assets of the foundation in accordance with the articles of association of the foundation.

A founder shall submit an application to the register institution to register the foundation in the register. The application shall be signed by the founder, and when founding a foundation based on a will, the executor of the will, heir of guardian.

Attached to the application shall be:

1. the founding decision;
2. the articles of association;
3. the written consent of each board member to be a board member.

2.6. Lithuania

Charity and sponsorship funds are established primarily to fund charitable and sponsorship-type efforts. They are the only forms of not-for-profit organisations that are permitted to provide aid to natural persons. While business organisations may provide such support, the funds they provide can only come from their after-tax profits.

According to the “Law on Charity and Sponsorship Funds”26 (therein and after LCSF) such a fund is a separate organisational form different from associations, community organisations, and public institutions. Charity and sponsorship funds are not permitted to engage in economic activities. Furthermore, there are no minimum capital or membership requirements for the creation of charity and sponsorship funds.

A fund is a public legal person of limited civil liability having its own name and the objective of providing charity and/or sponsorship and other support to legal and natural persons in the fields of science, culture, education, arts, religion, sports, health care, social care and assistance, environmental protection as well as in other fields recognised as selfless and beneficial to society.

The name of the fund shall contain the words “charity” or “sponsorship” or “charity and sponsorship”. Office of the fund shall be situated in the Republic of Lithuania. The fund shall maintain at least one bank account.

The founders of a fund may be legal and natural persons who have concluded a memorandum of association and who have undertaken, prior to the fund’s registration in the Legal Entities’ Register, an obligation to make monetary or property contributions and provide services to the fund. Where the fund is established by a single person, he shall execute a founding act, instead of a memorandum of association, subject to the requirements applied to the memorandum of association.

The memorandum of association (founding act) of the fund shall be signed by all of its founders. All founders of the fund shall become its stakeholders as of the date of the fund’s registration in the Legal Entities’ Register.

The following shall be indicated in the fund’s memorandum of association (founding act):

1. the founders (full names, personal identification codes and addresses of natural persons, business names and identification codes of legal persons as well as their registered offices, full names or business names and personal identification codes (identification codes) of their representatives);
2. the name of the fund;
3. property and non-property obligations of the founders;
4. the fund’s objectives;
5. the date of the memorandum of association (founding act).

The memorandum of association (founding act) may also specify:

1. the procedure of compensation of founding costs;
2. the procedure of settlement of disputes between the founders;
3. persons who have the right to represent the fund, their rights and powers;
4. the procedure for convening a founding meeting and the procedure of adopting decisions by the founding meeting;
5. other provisions that do not contravene this Law and other laws.

The fund shall hold general meetings of stakeholders and shall set up a managing body. The fund may also set up other structural bodies.

The general meeting of stakeholders shall be the supreme governing body of the fund.

The general meeting of stakeholders shall:
1. amend the fund’s Articles of association;
2. make decisions on the removal of stakeholders from the fund and conferring stakeholder rights to supporters;
3. elect (appoint) and remove members of a collegiate managing body and single-person managing body, the chairman of a collegiate managing body and the auditor, unless otherwise provided by the Articles of association;
4. elect (appoint) and remove members of other collegiate bodies, where such bodies are stipulated in the fund’s Articles of association and where the Articles do not provide otherwise;
5. approve the annual financial accounts of the fund;
6. decide on the restructuring or dissolution (reorganisation or liquidation) of the fund;
7. decide on the establishment of other legal persons or becoming member of other legal persons, unless otherwise provided by the Articles of association.

The fund shall be registered in the Legal Entities’ Register. The fund may be registered only after its memorandum of association (founding act) has been concluded, its founding meeting has been convened, its Articles of association have been adopted, at least one of its managing bodies has been set up and other obligations stipulated in the memorandum of association (founding act) have been fulfilled. The following documents shall be submitted to the Legal Entities’ Register for the registration of a fund: memorandum of association (founding act) and Articles of association of the fund. The fund shall be deemed to be established as of the date of its registration in the Legal Entities’ Register. The Legal Entities’ Register shall also include the following information concerning the fund:

All of the stakeholders shall have the right to vote at the general meeting of stakeholders, each of the stakeholders having one vote. Members of the managing bodies and other collegiate bodies of the fund, where they are not the fund’s stakeholders, may attend a general meeting of stakeholders without the right to vote.

2.7. Malta

According to the Malta White papers Foundation is dedicated to a purpose for the benefit of persons and administered by administrators. All Foundations must register as legal persons. These are artificial persons and are treated as persons.

The proposed Civil Code deals in detail with Foundations. These could be for a private interest with beneficiaries or for a “social purpose” and established as “non-profit making”. Foundations can be created by public deed or will, which must contain statutory information about various matters listed in the law, and must be registered in the Public Registry.

Foundations must be established with at least 500 Lira and additional funds can be endowed after establishment.

It is possible for a purpose Foundation to have beneficiaries only when the dominant purpose of a Foundation is to support a class of persons which constitute a sector within the community as a whole. In that case the public interest overcomes the problem of private interest of the individual beneficiaries.

The provisions then deal with rights of founders, administrators and beneficiaries including the rights of information of beneficiaries. It should be noted that as the Continental Law of Foundations is not very developed in so far as it relates to rights of beneficiaries, the proposed provisions of the Civil Code track those in the Trusts and Trustees Act where beneficiaries are very much the focus. This also results in harmony within the legal system for similar cases.

2.8. Poland

Foundations are organisations established “to pursue socially or economically useful objectives that are consonant with the basic interests of the Republic of Poland”30. Foundations in Poland operate according to the Law on Foundations, which came into force in 1984 (See annex). Any individual and legal person (including an association) can establish a foundation.

Foundations have to be registered in the National Judicial Register (KRS)

The foundations statute must include: its name, address, assets, purposes, principles, forms and scope of activity, composition and organisational structure of governing board, and the procedure for appointing members of that body, as well as the responsibilities and powers of that body and its members. The statute may also contain other provisions, in particular those concerning the foundation’s conduct of economic activity, the admissibility and terms of its linkage with another foundation, changes in objectives or amendments to the statute, and it may also provide for establishing other foundation bodies in addition to the governing board31.

For both associations and foundations the description of purposes and activities in the statute is important as work determined to be outside of these provisions may result in restrictions or sanctions.

Governing structures: The Law on Associations states that an association independently sets its structures32 but goes on to state general requirements including:

The highest authority is the general assembly of members or in some situations, an assembly of delegates33.

There must be a board and an internal auditing organ.

The Law on Foundations states only that the structure of a foundation is to be determined by the founder and identified in its statute and that the governing board shall direct a foundations activities and represent it to the world34.

CHAPTER 1
DEFINITIONS IN THE NATIONAL LAWS OF EU10 FOR DIFFERENT TYPES OF ENTITIES

2.9. Slovakia

According to the Act No. 34/2002 on Foundations and Amendments of the Civil Code\(^\text{35}\), the Foundation is an interest association of property, which serves to public benefit (see below). The Foundation is a legal entity incorporated into the Foundation Register kept by the Ministry of Interior of the Slovak Republic (hereafter only “MI”). Any natural or legal person (hereafter only “the founder”) may establish a foundation. To do so, the founder(s) need sign under authority the Foundation Deed, which must contain the unique name containing the word “nadácia”, its public benefit purpose, identification of all founders, value of the endowment and proportions of it as endowed by individual founders, identification of its first Board of Directors and the basic procedural rules for decision-making and grant giving to third persons.

In the case of Foundations the law is based on the principle of the first choice left to the founder(s) as regards the members of the Board of Directors and the Supervisory Board, as well as the person appointed as Custodian of the Foundation, who is the Chief Executive Officer employed by the Foundation. However, according to § 22 of the Foundation Act the founder(s) may specify in the Foundation Deed the length of the term of service in the boards, as well as to specify the prerequisites for the membership. Therefore, long-term membership is possible and as a prerequisite for membership may be e.g. the nomination by a certain body or person. However, general principle calls for separation of the Foundation from its founder(s) and a shift of the control to the boards representing general public.

2.10. Slovenia

Foundations are grant-making, asset-based organisations established by foreign or domestic legal or natural persons\(^\text{36}\) for generally beneficial or charitable purposes. “Generally beneficial” activities are those in the fields of science, culture, sport, education, health care, child and disabled care, social welfare, environmental protection, conservation of natural and cultural heritage, or religion\(^\text{37}\). A foundation may engage in economic activities to the extent they advance the purpose for which the foundation was established\(^\text{38}\).

Foundations are required to pursue public benefit objectives.

3. Non-Profit Organisations

Non-profit organisations are legal or social entities created for the purpose of producing goods and services whose status does not permit them to be a source of income, profit, or other financial gain for the units that establish, control or finance them.

Non-Profit Organisations could be defined as organisations that:

1. are not-for-profit; that means that Non-Profit Organisations are organisations that do not exist primarily to generate profits, either directly or indirectly.

2. do not distribute any benefit they may generate to those who own or control them; that means that Non-Profit Organisations may be profit-making, but they are “non-profit distributing.”

3. are institutionally separate from government; that means that the organisation is not part of the state machinery and does not exercise state authority in its own right.

4. are self-governing; that means that the organisation is able to control its own activities and is not under the effective control of any other entity.

DEFINITIONS IN THE NATIONAL LAWS OF EU10 FOR DIFFERENT TYPES OF ENTITIES

4. Non-Governmental Organisation

During our research we could not find any definitions of Non-Governmental organisations for all EU 10 countries. It appears that associations and foundations are more widely used in the region.

Non-Governmental Organisations have been defined by the Council of Europe in its Fundamental Principles as follows:

1. NGOs are essentially voluntary self-governing bodies and are not therefore subject to direction by public authorities. The terms used to describe them in national law may vary, but they include associations, charities, foundations, funds, non-profit corporations, societies and trusts. They do not include bodies which act as political parties.

2. NGOs encompass bodies established by individual persons (natural and legal) and groups of such persons. They may be national or international in their composition and sphere of operation.

3. NGOs are usually organisations which have a membership but this is not necessarily the case;

4. NGOs do not have the primary aim of making a profit. They do not distribute profits arising from their activities to their members or founders, but use them for the pursuit of their objectives.

5. NGOs can be either informal bodies or organisations which have legal personality. They may enjoy different statuses under national law in order to reflect differences in the financial or other benefits which they are accorded in addition to legal personality.

5. Other legal forms

This section handles other legal forms of entities that can form part of the non-profit sector.

Most part of the EU 10 countries has at least one new form in addition to associations and foundations. Some countries have distinguished between grant-making and service-providing organisations. They define foundations as primarily grant-making organisations, and create a separate form for non-membership NGOs that are mainly dependent on grants or income from economic activities to carry out their mission. Some countries have created open foundations, organisations that have characteristics of both associations and foundations.

Other countries such as Czech Republic have Public Benefit Corporations, Lithuania have Public institutions.

Also we found two other forms: Non-Investment Funds in Slovakia and Institutes in Slovenia.

5.2.1. Public Benefit Corporations

Public Benefit Corporation is service-providing, non-membership, and non-profit organisations governed by a Board of Directors appointed by the founder(s) from the general public unrelated to the Public Benefit Corporation employees.

PBC have no membership and render "generally beneficial services" to the public on equal terms and conditions. This legal form is commonly used by government-dependent NGOs such as theatres, hospitals, homes for the elderly, drug rehabilitation clinics, etc.

Public Benefit Corporations may engage in economic activities if the income is used to improve the utilization of the organisation’s assets without negatively affecting the quality, scope, and availability of the public services it offers. Public Benefit Corporations may not invest in the entrepreneurial activities of other persons.

5.3. Estonia

No definition for other legal forms could be found for Estonia.

5.4. Hungary

5.4.1. Public Benefit Company

A public benefit company is an organisation which is set up to regularly pursue a public benefit activity and to conduct accompanying economic activities. A public benefit company may not distribute any profits to its members. The goal of this form is to facilitate the privatization of public services through a non-profit service-providing institution.

5.4.2. Public Chamber (Public Body)

A public chamber is a self-governed organisation with a registered membership, which is established by an act of Parliament. A public chamber fulfils a public task connected with its membership or the activity performed by its members. Legislation may delegate certain public responsibilities to public chambers (such as certifying professional qualifications) and may prohibit non-members from engaging in those activities. Where not stated otherwise, the rules for associations apply to public chambers.

5.4.3. Public Corporations

Public corporations are self-governing organisations with registered membership whose establishment has been ordered by law. Public corporations perform public duties related to their membership and/or the activities performed by their membership. Public corporations are legal persons.

Public corporations are, in particular, the Hungarian Academy of Sciences, the chamber of commerce, and professional associations.

The law can prescribe certain public duties that must be performed by public corporations. Public bodies have the authorization, defined by law, to fulfil public duties, and they shall exercise such rights through self-management.

The law may prescribe that certain public duties be performed exclusively by public corporations and that certain activities may only be performed by members of public corporations.

Data relating to public duties performed by public corporations are of public interest.

Unless otherwise provided by law, the provisions pertaining to societies shall be duly applied to public corporations.

The establishment of public foundations can be made mandatory by law. For the purposes of Subsection (1), the state or local government responsibilities that are prescribed by legal regulation to be provided by the state or local government shall be deemed as public responsibilities. The establishment of a public foundation shall not affect the obligation of the state or local government for fulfilling such responsibilities.

A public foundation may also be formed by a foundation donating its entire assets, with the consent of the founder, to a duly authorized body in order to establish a public foundation with the same objective. The party entitled to form a public foundation, if it accepts the donation, shall establish the public foundation together with the foundation's founder. The foundation shall be terminated upon the establishment of the public foundation, which shall thereby become its legal successor, and the founders of the public foundation shall, unless otherwise provided in the charter, exercise the founders' rights together.

A body entitled to found a public foundation shall only be entitled to establish foundations that are public foundations.

When a public foundation is established, the charter shall also specify the managing body; or a separate body, including the body entitled to supervise the managing body, and shall be created for this purpose.

The charters of public foundations must be published in an official gazette.

Unless otherwise provided by law, anybody shall be entitled to join a public foundation without conditions; however, the charter can stipulate that joining is contingent upon the approval of the managing body (organisation).

The managing body (organisation) shall report to the founder annually on the operation of the public foundation, and it shall publish the most important details of its financial affairs. The legitimacy and propriety of the financial management of public foundations, with the exception of public foundations founded by the representative body of a local government, shall be overseen by the State Audit Office.

The court shall, upon the founder's request, terminate a public foundation in a non-litigious proceeding if there is no longer any need for the public responsibility, or if the public responsibility can be performed more efficiently in another way or through a different organisational structure. When a public foundation is terminated, the foundation's assets shall, after satisfying any creditors, remain with the founder, who shall use the assets for a purpose similar to that of the terminated public foundation and shall appropriately inform the public thereof\(^{50}\).

5.7. Malta
In terms of legislation there is no single instrument for NGO sector regulation and there are no commonly-used definitions on important terms.

In order to fill the gap, overview of Maltese conventional companies are presented below:

Types of companies:

- International Trading Company which trades from Malta but not in Malta (e.g. a manufacturing company which exports its products as it cannot sell to local customers).

- International Holding Company which has its objects limited to the ownership, management and administration of other companies.

- Ship Management Company which is set up to manage, administer or operate ships whether they are registered in Malta or elsewhere.

- Shipping Company whose objects are limited to the ownership, sale, operation and charter of Maltese ships.
DEFINITIONS IN THE NATIONAL LAWS OF EU10 FOR DIFFERENT TYPES OF ENTITIES

- The private limited Liability Company.

Capital requirements: Minimum share capital of 500 Malta Lira (approx. US$1 500) which has to be 20% paid up (i.e. US$300). Any foreign currency may be used.

Incorporation process: 4 days

Minimum members: Every company must have at least 2 shareholders. However, a private exempt company may have a single member. Venture Services Limited may subscribe for 1 share on a nominal basis to satisfy the two-shareholder rule.

Nominee shareholders: Beneficial owners may choose to remain anonymous by utilising a licensed nominee shareholder. In this case shares would be held by Venture Services Limited.

Registered office: An International Trading Company, International Holding Company, Ship Management or Shipping company must have a registered office in Malta.

Directors: All companies must have at least 1 director. The director need not be a Maltese resident.

Audit requirements: Audited accounts are required.

Accounts requirements: Accounts must be presented at an Annual General Meeting (AGM) to be held every year not later than 10 months from the end of the company’s accounting year and thereafter delivered to the Registrar of Companies. An AGM must be held every year not later than 15 months from the last AGM.

Annual Returns An Annual Return must be filed with the Registrar of Companies every year and must be drawn up to a date 10 months after the end of the company’s accounting year. It must be filed within 42 days from the date as at when the annual return is made up.

Accounts

All companies must maintain proper books of accounts which give a true and fair view of the state of their affairs and which explain their transactions thereby enabling the balance sheets and profit and loss accounts to be prepared. In so doing, companies are bound to follow ‘generally accepted accounting principles and practices’. This requires adherence to International Accounting Standards.

All companies must prepare individual accounts comprising the:

1. balance sheet;
2. profit and loss account;
3. directors’ report; and
4. notes to these accounts.

These accounts must be delivered to the Registrar of Companies by the accounting reference date. A company may, in the first 9 months from registration, choose its accounting reference date. In the absence of any request to the Registrar of Companies, a company’s accounting reference date shall be the 31st December.

Private exempt companies, which qualify as ‘small’, need only deliver to the Registrar of Companies an abridged balance sheet, all the notes to the balance sheet and the auditors’ report (i.e. without the profit and loss account and the directors’ report).

A company shall draw up its accounts in the same currency of its share capital.

In addition, all companies are bound to file with the Registrar of Companies an Annual Return Form wherein details about the company’s share capital, shareholders, directors and secretary are laid out together with payment of a registration fee which is calculated depending on the authorised share capital of the company. This varies between a minimum of 50 and a maximum of 250 Malta Lira (approximately US$ 125 - 625).

Legal and judicial representation of the company

Generally speaking, the director/s is vested with the legal representation of the company. With respect to the judicial representation of the company, this is generally vested in one or more of the directors or shareholders of the company, though any advocate of our Firm may appear in such capacity.

5.7.1. Incorporation

Incorporation of a company under Maltese law takes place by filing a document known as a Memorandum and Articles of Association. This document essentially constitutes a contract between the shareholders that are forming the company.

The Memorandum describes the nature of the company in formation and must contain the following information:

2. an indication whether the company is a public or private company;
3. personal details of each of the shareholders (i.e. name, address in full and passport number);
4. the objects of the company;
5. the registered office in Malta of the company;
6. the authorized and issued share capital of the company, divided into shares of a fixed nominal value;
7. the number of shares taken up by each shareholder and the amount paid up in respect of each share;
8. the number of directors and their personal details;
9. the manner in which the legal and judicial representation of the company is to be exercised and the name of the first person/s vested with such representation; and
10. personal details of the first company secretary.

Non-Investment Funds

A Non-Investment Fund accumulates assets for publicly beneficial purposes, as defined in the law, or for humanitarian assistance benefiting individuals whose lives are at risk or who have suffered from a natural disaster. The Non-Investment Fund’s governing documents should indicate those persons who are eligible to receive benefits from the fund or the geographic region in which benefits will be distributed. Any legal or natural person may establish a Non-Investment Fund with a minimum founder's contribution of at least 2,000 Slovak koruna.

5.10. Slovenia

Institutes

Institutes are non-membership organisations established to conduct activities in the areas of education, science, culture, sports, health, social welfare, children's care, care of the disabled, social security, or other non-profit activities. Private institutes may be established by domestic or foreign legal entities.

Public institutes are required to engage in "public services," a term which is not defined. Public institutes must be established by a public entity, such as a local municipality; other legal or natural persons may serve only as co-founders of public institutes. Public Institutes are legal entities unless otherwise provided by law or by a municipal or city decision. More generally, Public Institutes may be established under regulations on state administration or by municipal/city decision, but this Note addresses only those Public Institutes established and governed pursuant to the Institutes Law.

Private institutes may provide public benefit services if they meet the conditions established by the relevant authorities. Institutes may engage in economic activities provided that they are intended to further the performance of those activities for which the institute was formed.

Institutes may engage in any lawful not-for-profit activity.

Chapter 2.
Analysis and Assessment of Existing Systems

Transparency in the non profit sector may be better achieved by the regulation of the entities mentioned in the following sections. These sections give basic information on the non-profit sector in the EU10 countries.

1. Registration

1.1. Registration System

1.1.1. Registration of Associations, Foundations, NPOs and NGOs

EU 10 countries are divided between vesting registration authority in the courts or in ministries. The trend, however, is to place the registration body in the courts. EU 10 countries differ significantly in how much they centralize the registration process. While some countries have a single entity competent to register NGOs, the trend is to delegate registration authority to the local level to ease the formality of registration.

Registration procedures vary widely, depending on the country and the organisational form. Typically NGOs applying for registration must submit the following documents to the registration authority: the act of establishment, the governing statutes and the registration application. The documentation must contain the basic information (name, address, goals and activities, founders, internal governance procedures, etc.) required by law.

Generally speaking, the obligation to register an associative body arises with the establishment of this entity and serves to verify the compliance with the establishing requirements.

1.1.2. Registration of Public Benefit Organisations

Most countries in the region treat Public Benefit status as a necessary condition to grant tax benefits or other types of state support. The benefit granted to Public Benefit Organisations generally come in form of tax exemptions, tax benefits to donors, preferred status for government funding, etc.

While organisations that receive public benefit status are entitled to more benefits than others, in turn they are subject to greater supervision by the government and have to comply with rules on accountability. The purpose is to protect the public from possible fraud and ensure that the benefits these organisations get are not wrongfully used\(^\text{60}\).

In determining the registration (or certification) procedures for a public benefit status organisation, countries have adopted a variety of different approaches. In some countries, this authority is vested in the tax authorities. In other countries, the courts or a governmental entity, such as the Ministry of Justice, confers public benefit status.

Generally, NGOs applying for public benefit status must submit documentation indicating (1) the qualifying public benefit activities; (2) compliance with internal governance requirements, including safeguards against conflict of interest and self-dealing; and (3) compliance with activity requirements (extent of public benefit activity) and limitations on activity (for-profit, political, etc.). For example, Hungary and Poland both list the specific provisions that must be included in the organisation’s founding instrument to attain public benefit status. In addition, as with initial registration as an NGO, PBO certification procedures typically include procedural safeguards to protect applicants, such as time limits for the registration decision and the right to appeal an adverse decision to an independent arbiter.

1.2. Country Overview

The following is meant to give an overview of the national registration systems for EU10. Also information about responsible registration authority, the documents that have to be filed with the authority and the content of the register entry has been examined.

(a) General Rules for Becoming a Legal Entity

As a general rule, an entity acquires legal personality status only after the relevant authority has decided formally on its registration. Therefore, any legal action taken by the entity prior to this date is deemed invalid. The incorporation of the legal entity in the relevant register is essential to its legal status. To prove the legal status, the legal entities must obtain either a registration certificate or a stamped, registered copy of their statute, which was filed with the Ministry of Interior. When the registering authority is the court, a registration decision is issued, containing all the information filed in the register.

Registration of associations usually takes several days. Registration of PBCs, foundations or funds may take several months because the courts are not limited by any terms in their decision-making.

(b) Foundations

Both natural persons and legal bodies, including foreigners, may establish a foundation or a fund. To register, the founder(s) must present the proposal for registration to the district court, which is responsible for keeping the register of foundations and funds. The same court operates the register of commercial legal bodies. The proposal must be accompanied by the Articles of Incorporation in the form of a Founders' Agreement, if there are two or more founders, or in the form of a Notary Act, if the founder is a single person. The Founder’s Agreement must be signed on authority.

According to the Law on Foundations and Funds, the information provided in the Articles of Incorporation and in the Application for Registering must include the following:

1. the unique name of the foundation or the fund and address of its headquarters (seat);
2. the name of and other identification information about its founder(s) and their share in the property endowed;
3. the purpose for which the entity is being established (which must be for public benefit, compatible with examples set by the law);
4. in the case of a foundation, the list of endowment components and their identification together with certified overall value of listed endowment assets;
5. the names of the members of the first board of directors (no less than three natural persons) and of the supervisory board (for smaller funds there might be one single person – the Inspector);
6. the way in which the board of directors acts on behalf of the entity;
7. general rules by which the granting procedure to third persons will be regulated; and
8. a “ceiling” restricting the administrative expenses.

Within 30 days of registration, the board of directors of a foundation/fund must submit its Statute, which specifies in more detail the governing structure and proceedings, as well as grant-making rules and any other specific internal regulations.

(c) Associations

At least three citizens, one of them should be over the age of 18, can form a Preparatory (Founding) Committee that may establish an association. Associations are registered at the Department for Civic Affairs of the Ministry of Interior of the Czech Republic. To register an association, the Preparatory (Founding) Committee must present an Establishment Proposal, properly signed by the members of the Founding Committee and containing their full identification – home address and the Personal Identity Number or the date of birth, in the case of a foreigner. The document must also explicitly define the person, which is authorized to represent the association during the registration period. Two copies of the by-laws (statute) of the association must be attached to the Establishment Proposal. The name of the association may not be identical to any other name of an already registered legal entity. In practice, it is often difficult to check for the required uniqueness of the association’s name because the register of associations, maintained by the Ministry of Interior, is not treated as a public document and, therefore, is not open to the general public. However, the Ministry must make it possible to provide the necessary data from the register on written request.

Registration of an association may be rejected only if the Ministry finds the purpose of the association not to be in compliance with the requirements of the law, as described above. The association must not resemble a political party or religious congregation, for which there are specific laws. There should also be no evident military or paramilitary activities inherent in the purpose and the Statute of the association, nor any membership’s restrictions, benefits or obligations, which would violate basic human rights and freedoms. The Ministry should identify minor faults in the application for registration to the Preparatory Committee within five days of the submission of the proposal, so that the documents may be corrected and resubmitted. More serious objections to the Establishment Proposal must be conveyed to the Preparatory Committee within ten days. The association becomes a legal entity upon obtaining certification of registration from the Ministry of Interior (usually in a form of a certified copy of the Statute submitted for registration), or it becomes a legal entity by default if the Ministry does not inform the Preparatory Committee of its negative decision within 40 days of submission of the Establishment Proposal. A rejection of registration may be appealed to the Supreme Court.

(d) Other Forms

Public Benefit Corporations (PBCs)

A PBC may be established by a natural person or by a legal entity, including the Czech Republic or any municipality. The founder may be a single person or several persons acting together. The founder(s) present the proposal for registration to the district court, which is responsible for keeping the register of public benefit corporations. The proposal must be accompanied by the Articles of Incorporation in the form of a Founders' Agreement, if there are two or more founders or in a form of the Notary Act, if the founder is a single person. The Founder's Agreement must be signed on authority.

According to the Law on Public Benefit Corporations, the information in the Articles of Incorporation and in the Application for Registering a PBC must include the following:

1. the unique name and address of the PBC;
2. the name and identification information for its founders and their share in the property endowed to the PBC, if there is such;
3. the public benefit services which the PBC is to provide;
4. the conditions upon which the public benefit services will be provided;
5. the names of members of the board of directors (no less than three natural persons) and the supervisory board, if such a body is established;
6. the way in which the board of directors acts on behalf of the entity;
7. the specification, whether the PBC is being established for an indefinite period of time or for a specific one;
8. the type of additional economic activities, if such activities are to be allowed to the PBC;
9. the means by which the obligatory annual report on activities will be published.

Some additional aspects of the law as well as other legal requirements include the following:

The founder(s) or board of directors must also obtain a license for any licensed additional economic activities in which the PBC is to engage (e.g. health services, social care).

The law is not explicit about the kind of services that might be proclaimed as public benefit services. As mentioned above, the only requirement is to make these services available to the general public under well-defined and equal conditions.

The PBC may refuse to accept any obligation incurred in its name by the founder(s) during the period of time between its establishment and the date of registration, at which point the PBC becomes a legal entity.

Within six months of registration, the board of directors of the newly registered PBC must decide on the Statute of the PBC. The Statute describes in more detail the governing structure and proceedings as well as rules for the provision of services together with any other specific internal regulations.

While all non-profit organisations must be registered with a court, registration cannot be refused if the requirements of the law are met. If a court does not register the organisation within 60 days of its application, it will be registered.

(a) Foundations

Founders may be "private persons, legal persons and unincorporated business associations." "Individuals or private organisations" may found public benefit companies. Registration applications must be submitted by the founder together with the organisation’s charter. The charter must contain the group’s name, purpose, location, available assets and the manner in which the assets will be used. An open foundation needs to show sufficient capital to start operations, while a closed foundation must have enough capital to achieve its objectives. The law does not state a precise minimum amount or the manner by which it is calculated. In practice, the amount has generally been low, e.g., for open foundations, approximately € 1 100 is often considered sufficient. The amount needed for a closed foundation will vary depending upon its objectives. The founder may not withdraw a foundation after it is registered.

A foundation’s founder has significant powers. The founder appoints and can change the governing body while retaining controlling influence on the use of assets and only the founder is entitled to amend the charter “without causing any injury to the foundation’s name, purpose, or assets.”

A company’s charter must specify the name of the founding legal person, the company’s initial assets, and other facts and circumstances stipulated by legal regulations.

Private persons, legal persons, and unincorporated business associations (jointly referred to hereinafter as “founders”) shall be entitled to form a foundation in a charter in order to serve a long-term public interest. A foundation may not be formed for the principal purpose of performing economic activities. A foundation shall provide sufficient assets for achieving its objectives. A foundation is a legal person.

A foundation is deemed established once it has been registered by the court.

The charter of a foundation shall contain:

1. the name,
2. the purpose,
3. the available assets and the manner in which they are to be utilized, and
4. the registered office.

A founder shall be entitled to designate a managing body in the charter or create a separate organisation for such purpose. The managing body (organisation) shall represent the foundation.

The court shall order the appointment of a managing body (organisation) if the founder has failed to provide for one or if the managing body (organisation) does not undertake to perform this task.

(b) Associations

There must be at least 10 members.

With regard to associations, registration applications must be submitted by a duly authorised person and include a copy of the group’s statute or by-laws with the minutes of the meeting where the group was established. The statute or by-laws should insure “democratic operation” and provide details of the name, purpose, location and structure. The court’s consideration of the application is to be non-contentious and once decided, the result is to be reported by the court to the public prosecutor’s office.

The main governing document of an association (statute or by-laws) or foundation (charter) must accompany the group’s application for registration and should contain:

1. the name
2. the purpose
3. for foundations, the available assets and the manner in which they are to be utilised

1.2.8. Poland

Information on charity organisations active in Poland are registered in:

1. the National Judicial Register (Krajowy Rejestr Sądowy – KRS) (registration documents of charitable foundations and associations);
2. appropriate Ministries – competent in view of the foundations’ scope of activity (the Ministries perform the function of a supervisory body for foundations);
3. notary public offices [kancelarie notarialne] (foundations are incorporated through a declaration of will of the founding person);
4. databases run by institutions which are not connected either with government or local government administration. The biggest database available on the internet belongs to the “Bank of Information on NGOs Klon\Jawor” (Bank Informacji o Organizacjach Pozarządowych Klon\Jawor).

(a) Foundations

Foundations have to be registered in the National Judicial Register (KRS)

The foundations statute must include: its name, address, assets, purposes, principles, forms and scope of activity, composition and organisational structure of governing board, and the procedure for appointing members of that body, as well as the responsibilities and powers of that body and its members. The statute may also contain other provisions, in particular those concerning the foundation’s conduct of economic activity, the admissibility and terms of its linkage with another foundation, changes in objectives or amendments to the statute, and it may also provide for establishing other foundation bodies in addition to the governing board⁹².

For both associations and foundations the description of purposes and activities in the statute is important as work determined to be outside of these provisions may result in restrictions or sanctions.

Governing structures: The Law on Associations states that an association independently sets its structures (Article 2(2)) but goes on to state general requirements including:

The highest authority is the general assembly of members or in some situations, an assembly of delegates (Article 11).

There must be a board and an internal auditing organ. (Id.)

The Law on Foundations states only that the structure of a foundation is to be determined by the founder and identified in its statute (Article 5) and that the governing board shall direct a foundations activities and represent it to the world (Article 10).

(b) Associations

Association have to be registered in the National Judicial Register (KRS)

The Law on Associations (Article 10) requires that an association’s statute must include:

1. a name of the association that distinguishes it from other associations, organisations, and institutions;
2. the seat and the territory of activities;
3. the goals of the association and the means for their achievement;
4. the ways of acquiring and losing membership, the rights and responsibilities of the members;
5. authorities of the association, the method of their election, the method of electing supplementary authority members, and the competence of the authorities;
6. the methods of representing the association and property obligations, as well as conditions

⁹² Article 5, Law on Foundations.
under which resolutions of the associations are binding;

7. the ways of obtaining financial means and deciding upon members dues;

8. principles of changing the statute;

9. the method of dissolution.

If branches are contemplated, information about their creation and structure must also be stated.

(Article 40) A simple association must adopt regulations that specify its name, location, goals, territory, types of activities, and representative.

(c) Other Forms

The 2003 Law on Public Benefit Activity and Volunteerism includes additional requirements for groups that seek public benefit status. They must have a statutory collegiate institution of monitoring or supervision that is separate from the management board and not supervised by the management board as far as internal monitoring or supervision are concerned.

1.2.9. Slovakia

(a) Foundations

Foundations have to be registered in the Ministry of interior. Foundations the law is based on the principle of the first choice left to the founder(s) as regards the members of the Board of Directors and the Supervisory Board, as well as the person appointed as Custodian of the Foundation, who is the Chief Executive Officer employed by the Foundation. However, according to § 22 of the Foundation Act the founder(s) may specify in the Foundation Deed the length of the term of service in the boards, as well as to specify the prerequisites for the membership. Therefore, long-term membership is possible and as a prerequisite for membership may be e.g. the nomination by a certain body or person. However, general principle calls for separation of the Foundation from its founder(s) and a shift of the control to the boards representing general public.

(b) Associations

Associations have to be registered in the Ministry of interior. One has to take into consideration the basic democratic principles the law implicitly provides for establishment, governance and control over an association.

93 Law on Public Benefit Activity and Volunteerism, Article 20(6).

(c) Other Forms

The solution in this case is nearly identical to that of Foundations. However, in this case the founder(s) do not have those special rights to specify the way of election and prepositions for membership in the second and following terms in the boards of a NPOPBS.

1.2.10. Slovenia

CHAPTER 2
ANALYSIS AND ASSESSMENT OF EXISTING SYSTEMS

2. Accreditation/Seal of Approval

2.1. Accreditation System

Apart from registration system, accreditation system can be used. Generally the certifying body certifies the conformity to the standards and the gained status may lead to the granting of funds or subsidies.

In many countries, various organisational forms are eligible to receive the public benefit status. Some countries have adopted specific public benefit legislation. To qualify as a "public benefit status" organisation, an association or foundation (or other NGO legal form) must be dedicated to public benefit purposes and activities. The list of public benefit purposes will vary from country to country.

In determining the registration procedures for a public benefit status organisation, countries have adopted a variety of different approaches. In some countries, this authority is vested in the tax authorities. In other countries, the courts or a governmental entity, such as the Ministry of Justice, confers public benefit status.

Generally, NGOs applying for public benefit status must submit documentation indicating:

1. the qualifying public benefit activities;

2. compliance with internal governance requirements, including safeguards against conflict of interest and self-dealing;

3. compliance with activity requirements (extent of public benefit activity) and limitations on activity (for-profit, political, etc.).

For example, Hungary and Poland both list the specific provisions that must be included in the organisation's founding instrument to obtain public benefit status. Public Benefit Organisation certification procedures typically include procedural safeguards to protect applicants, such as time limits for the registration decision and the right to appeal an adverse decision to an independent arbiter.

2.2. Country Information

2.2.1. Cyprus

No information available yet

2.2.2. Czech Republic

The Law on Public Benefit Corporations explicitly allows Public Benefit Corporations to apply for grants and donations from the state or municipal budget.

Substantial government resources are available at line ministries of the Czech Government, which operate in the field of interest of associations and Public Benefit Corporations.

All state donations are registered in a register, which should become available to the general public and which will be combined with the database of NGOs, compiled by the Information Centre of NGOs. This practice is supported by governmental tenders being published the in the Bulletin of NGOs and in a Journal of Public Administration.

2.2.3. Estonia

There is no system of accreditation or approval for the charitable/non-profit sector.

Government finance single projects which are accepted by responsible ministry.

2.2.4. Hungary

Public Benefit Organisation – Any organisation registered as one of the five general legal forms—with the exception of insurance associations, political parties, and interest groups of employees or employers may register as a PBO in order to receive certain tax advantages. For an organisation to register as a PBO, its governing documents must contain the following provisions:

1. description of the activity of the organisation and a statement that the organisation does not exclude non-members from its services;

2. statement that the organisation pursues economic activity only in the interest of realizing its public benefit objectives, without jeopardizing them;

3. statement that the organisation does not distribute profits;

95 Act CLVI of 1997 on Public Benefit Organizations, Article §2(1).
Chapter 2
Analysis and Assessment of Existing Systems

4. statement that the organisation does not pursue direct political activity.96

Subsets of Public Benefit Organisations, known as “outstanding” or “prominent” Public Benefit Organisations, perform governmental responsibilities and receive added tax advantages.97

The following organisations, registered in Hungary, may be qualified as public benefit organisations:

1. civil society organisations, except insurance associations, political parties and interest groups of employers or employees,
2. foundations,
3. public foundations,
4. public benefit companies,
5. public chambers, if allowed by the act regulating their establishment.98

To be registered as a public benefit organisation, the founding document of the organisation shall include:

1. description of the sort of public benefit activity - defined in this Act - the organisation pursues, and a statement that the organisation, if a membership organisation, does not exclude non-members from public benefit services;
2. a statement that the organisation pursues business activity only in the interest of realizing its public benefit objectives, without jeopardizing them;
3. a statement that the organisation does not distribute profits, but spends them on the activity defined in its founding document;
4. a statement that the organisation does not pursue direct political activity, is independent of political parties and does not provide financial support to them.99

To be registered as a prominently public benefit organisation, the founding document of the organisation shall include a statement that the organisation:

1. in the course of its public benefit activity fulfils a public duty which must be provided by state organs or local governments pursuant to an act or other law in accordance with the act’s authorization, and
2. shall disclose through the local or national press the most important data regarding its activities as defined in the founding document and its management.

Preferences due to public benefit organisations, supporters of public benefit organisations and recipients of public benefit services.100

2.2.5. Latvia

There is no system of accreditation or approval for the charitable/non-profit sector.

2.2.6. Lithuania

In order to receive tax exemptions, legal persons must have a status of sponsorship donee. Traditional Lithuanian religious communities, communions, and centres as well as legal persons established for such religious purposes need not have a status of sponsorship donee. Donees (except for budgetary institutions) have a right themselves to be donors of sponsorship and charity.

Legal persons wishing to receive a status of sponsorship donee must provide the Register of Legal Persons with a donee application and a document proving payment of registration fees. Within 5 working days the Register must make decision on granting a status of sponsorship donee to the legal person and registers relevant data if the Articles of association of the legal person concerned contain provisions for being a sponsorship donee and for activities useful for society as provided for in the Law on Charity and Sponsorship. Having made a decision whether to grant a status of sponsorship donee or not, the Register informs in written the legal person concerned.

In some cases, affirmative steps have been taken to spur official support. For example, Article 28 of the Law on Provision of Information to the Public states that the state shall support the cultural and educational activity of public information producers.

97 Act CLVI of 1997 on Public Benefit Organizations, Article §5.
98 Act CLVI of 1997 on Public Benefit Organizations, Article §2.

2.2.7. Malta
There is no seal of approval/accreditation system according to all the referred documents/books.

2.2.8. Poland
There is no seal of approval/accreditation system according to all the referred documents/books.

2.2.9. Slovakia
There is no seal of approval/accreditation system according to all the referred documents/books.

2.2.10. Slovenia
An association that engages in public benefit activities may apply to the appropriate ministry for the status of “association in the public interest”\textsuperscript{101}. Criteria for obtaining this status vary depending on the ministry. Foundations and public institutes must pursue public benefit objectives as their primary activity. Specifically, foundations must pursue either charitable or “generally beneficial purposes,” defined as activities in the fields of science, culture, sport, education, health care, child and disabled care, social welfare, environmental protection, conservation of natural and cultural heritage, or religion\textsuperscript{102}. Public institutes must provide “public services” in the spheres of education, science, culture, sports, health, social welfare, children’s care, care of the disabled, social security, or other non-profit activities\textsuperscript{103}.

3. Monitoring

3.1. Monitoring System
Monitoring is determined as a system to control organisations and safeguard their conformity to appropriate regulations and to provide the donors with steady and reliable information concerning the efficiency of the non-profit organisations.

Basically this is safeguarded by holding the organisations accountable.

The highest governing body of the NGOs is responsible for ensuring that the NGO is accountable to the community (including government, beneficiaries, and the general public). The highest governing body therefore has the authority and duty to review and approve the annual budget, the annual financial report, and the annual activity report (if applicable). The highest governing body is empowered to set policy, to elect or appoint officers, to decide on transformation, termination and dissolution, and to decide on changes to the organisation’s governing documents.

Members of governing bodies may be personally liable for harm to the NGO or to third parties. In Czech Republic the liability to third parties lies with the organisation, and not with the individual members of the board. Estonia imposes joint liability on board members for damages wrongfully caused to the NGO or to creditors of the NGO for failures to perform their duties in the manner required.

3.1.1. Supervisory Authorities
In Hungary it is the public prosecutor of the district where the NGO is registered that is responsible for NGOs’ compliance with the law. In Poland, it is the line ministry that supervises NGOs in its field of competence. In Estonia and Slovakia, the Ministry of Interior regulates the activities of associations and foundations; in the Czech Republic, the Ministry of Interior oversees associations, and the court of registry oversees the activities of foundations, funds and public benefit companies.

In addition, the tax authorities ensure compliance with tax regulations. Other regulatory bodies may focus on compliance with labour law regulations and money laundering provisions. In Lithuania, for example, State Tax Inspection monitors the activities of charitable/non-profit organisations as far as tax exemption is concerned. Lithuanian Stated Tax Inspection supervises how a tax-payer carries out its duties as prescribed by relevant legislation. If an infringement is found which does not fall into the remits of the State Tax Inspection, it is forwarded to the Financial Crime Investigation Service.

All NGOs must undertake annual financial reviews, and reports of charity and sponsorship funds must be made available to anyone who is interested.

3.1.2. Annual Reports
Many NGOs must produce annual reports of their finances. Some are required to submit more detailed information about their activities to a body other than the tax authority, often the body responsible for registering NGOs or the ministry with responsibility over the area of the organisation’s activities. In several countries associations are exempt from these reporting requirements. For example, Hungarian and Polish \textsuperscript{101} Articles 3 and 38, Associations Law, Slovenia.

\textsuperscript{102} Article 2, Foundations Law, Slovenia.

\textsuperscript{103} Articles 1 and 3, Institutes Law, Slovenia.
associations do not have to produce any reports, at least as long as their income is below a certain level. However, they may be audited and therefore need to keep records. In both countries, reporting is also tied to having the status of a public benefit organisation, which demands a higher level of accountability from both foundations and associations.

3.1.3. Activity Reports

Some countries require certain NGO organisational forms to file reports about their activities. Slovakia, for example, requires summaries of activities and an explanation of how they relate to the organisation's purpose and a separate accounting for expenses related to business activity; foundations, it also requires a division of expenses into administrative and purpose-related expenses. Public benefit organisations in Hungary are required to produce detailed reports. Foundations are also often required to report specifically on their management of their endowments, as in Slovenia. Independent audits are required in certain cases, as for foundations in Estonia and Slovakia.

Authorities can apply government audits and inspections. Hungarian public benefit organisations are also subject to supervision by the State Audit Office for the use of budgetary subsidies. In Poland, the Ministry of Social Security has the right to access an organisation's property, documents and other carriers of information, as well as to demand written and oral explanations. The inspecting officials must prepare a written report; the head of the public benefit organisation then has the opportunity to submit a written explanation or objections to the content of the report, within 14 days.

3.1.4. Tax reports

NGOs are typically required to file tax reports under the terms and conditions of the tax laws. NGOs are often subject to a variety of other reporting requirements, including reports to management bodies, reports to licensing authorities if the NGO engages in an activity subject to licensing, reports to state funding bodies, and reports to private donors.

Public benefit companies, foundations and funds are supposed to act in compliance with the law and their own statutes. They are also required to report their activities in an annual report, which includes an overview of their property, provided grants or services and acceptance of substantial donations. Any person, who proves a legal interest, may apply to the court of registry for permission to bring proceedings against a Public benefit companies, foundation or fund. The court may decide on the winding-up or, in the case of a Public benefit companies, on financial sanctions, i.e. the loss of tax benefits for one calendar year.

The court will issue the decree on dissolution of the foundation, if its endowment does not permanently yield revenues and the foundation has no other assets to be able to fulfil the purpose for which it was established. Similarly, a fund may be dissolved by the court decision, if its property has been totally spent and the fund is no more able to fulfil the purpose for which it was established. Upon a proposal of a founder, the Testimonial Administrator or a person which proves legal standing, the court will issue the decree on dissolution of the foundation/fund as well, if it violates in a serious manner or repeatedly the law or its own Statute, if during the previous year there was not convened any single meeting of its board of directors or if the members of the boards were not elected for more than a year to replace persons whose membership in a board terminated, or if the foundation/fund does not fulfil the purpose for which it was established for a period of time longer than two years. In all this cases, there is issued a period of time within which there is a possibility given to remedy the violation determined by the court.

Every legal entity must file an annual tax report that includes information on its overall income and expenditures for the previous calendar year. Organisations earning over 5 000 000 Czech Crowns and all foundations are expected to use a cross-account method for keeping their financial records and must attach an audited financial report signed by an independent auditor. The tax report of all corporate persons must also include the account numbers at all banks where income is deposited. The district financial administration offices are the bodies that supervise the compliance of the legal entities registered in the district with the tax laws.

3.2. Country Information

3.2.1. Cyprus

Information is not available yet.

3.2.2. Czech Republic

The Ministry of Interior is expected to monitor the activities of associations, but in no case it may interfere with its activities. In the case, when the Ministry learns about an activity of an association, which violates the requirements of law, the Ministry is obliged to issue a warning to the association and if the warning does not lead to remedy, the Ministry may decide to dissolve the association. This decision may be appealed to the Supreme Court.

Frequency of monitoring
The specific rules on tax reporting are discussed above. Civil organisations with income of less than 100 000 Czech Crowns or only with exempt income are not required to file a tax return. However, they must be able to document their incomes and expenses for the past 10 years should the relevant authority of the Ministry of Finance decide to review the organisation’s accounting books.

Strict requirements are imposed on the annual reporting of Public benefit companies, foundations, and funds by the new laws. They must produce and publish an annual report on their activities and economic results not later than six months after the close of the fiscal year and not later than 18 months after the original registration. The report should include summaries of all activities and their relationship to the public benefit services for which the Public benefit companies was established or to the granting and other activities of a foundation or a fund. The report must also include the annual balance sheet of income and expenses as well as the statement from an auditor, if an audit was made (an audited financial statement is obligatory for foundations, as well as for PBCs receiving state donation and funds with a turnover or total property value greater then 3 000 000 Czech Crowns). The report should also include commentary about the assets of the organisation and a commented overview of income and expenses. Income is to be reported separately according to its source. The expenses must be reported so as to distinguish between those related to public benefit services and activities and other additional activities and administration. The law also provides for sanctions for non-compliance with these rules. These sanctions may be limited to a temporary loss of tax benefits for a Public benefit companies, or may result in liquidation in the case of a foundation or a fund.

Foundations and funds must include in their annual reports an evaluation of how effectively their grants were used by the grantees, as well as how they complied with the obligatory rule that limits their administrative expenses. The rule limiting expenses is a part of the registered information and must not be changed for 5 years.

3.2.3. Estonia

The general regulations for governance of NPOs are provided for in the General Principles of the Civil Code Act (GPCCA). The regulations require the following: a compulsory management organ or management board; personal liabilities for intentional harm caused to the organisation or third parties; and general norms for the winding up and liquidation of legal entities. The activities of non profit associations, as well as foundations, are generally monitored by the registrar, i.e. the registry departments of the courts of first instance which are responsible for maintaining the register of non profit associations and foundations. The Minister of Internal Affairs is authorized to monitor the activities of non profit associations and foundations in order to detect severe deviances of the actual activities of the organisations from the objectives specified in the articles of associations, as well as violations of law and public order.

All NPOs must keep their books and records in accordance with the requirements of the Accounting Act. In the case of foundations the annual accounts and activities report must be audited by a professional auditor. Annual accounts and activities reports must be approved by the general assembly of the non-profit association or by the supervisory board of a foundation. A copy of the approved report must be submitted to the Register of Non-Profit Associations and Foundations.

(a) Foundations

Foundations are governed by two compulsory bodies - the management board and the supervisory board. The supervisory board must have at least 3 members who are natural persons with legal capacity. The procedure for the appointment and removal of the supervisory board must be provided for in the Articles of Association. Usually the founders of a foundation reserve for themselves the right to appoint members of the supervisory board. The term of office for the members of the supervisory board is not prescribed by law and may be clarified in the Articles of Association. The supervisory board plans the activities of the foundation, organises the management of the foundation, and supervises its activities. Generally the consent of the supervisory board is required for the management board to enter into transactions, which are beyond the scope of everyday economic activities.

The management board may consist of one or more members. The residence of at least 1/2 of the board members must be in Estonia. If the Articles of Association determine a set of beneficiaries, they or persons with an equivalent economic interest shall not be members of the management board. A member of the supervisory board or person in bankruptcy may not be a member of the management board. The members of the management board shall be appointed by a resolution of the foundation and any changes to its membership are decided by the supervisory board. The term of the office for members of the management board shall be set up in the Articles of Association. The management board manages and represents the foundation as well as runs its everyday businesses. Additionally, unless the objectives and appoint members to the management board. The term of the office for members of the management board shall be set up in the Articles of Association, change an objective of the non-profit association, or dissolve the foundation and any changes to the general assembly, which is empowered to amend the Articles of Association, change objectives and appoint members to the management board. Additionally, unless the Articles of Association provide otherwise, the general assembly has the power to elect members to the other bodies, decide on entry into transactions with members of the management board or other body, decide on the assertion of claims against members or appointing a representative of the non-profit association in such transactions and claims, and decide on other matters which are not placed in the competence of other bodies by law or the Articles of Associations.

A resolution of the general assembly is adopted if over 1/2 of the members or their representatives present at a meeting vote in favour of the resolution, unless the law or the Articles of Association prescribe a greater majority. The consent of all members is required in order to change an objective of the non-profit association, amend the Articles of Association, or dissolve the non-profit association. Unless the Articles of Association provide for a greater majority requirement, for mergers or dissolutions, over 2/3 of the votes from members participating in the general assembly are required.

Annual accounts and activities report must be audited by a professional auditor annually.

The management board shall organise the accounting of the foundation pursuant to the Accounting Act. After the end of a financial year, the management board shall prepare the annual accounts and activity report pursuant to procedure provided by law. The management board shall submit the reports for approval to the supervisory board not later than four months after the end of the financial year. Before submission of the reports for approval to the supervisory board, the management board shall forward the reports to the auditor for audit. Approved annual reports shall be signed by all members of the management board. The management board shall submit approved annual reports to the register within six months after the end of a financial year.

A foundation shall have an auditor. The number of auditors shall be specified and auditors shall be appointed by the supervisory board, which shall also specify the procedure for remuneration of auditors. Persons to whom the right to be an auditor is granted pursuant to law may be auditors. An auditor may be appointed to conduct a single audit or for a specified term. The written consent of a person shall be required for appointment of the person as auditor and it shall be appended to a list of auditors submitted to the registrar.

The general meeting supervises the activities of other bodies. In order to perform this duty, the general meeting may call for a review or audit. A member of the management board or an accountant of the non-profit association shall not be a controllers or auditor. The members of the management board and of other bodies shall enable controllers or auditors to examine all documents necessary for conduct of a review or audit and shall provide necessary information. Controllers and auditors shall prepare a report concerning the results of a review or audit, which they shall present to the general meeting.

The management board shall organise the accounting of the non-profit association pursuant to the Accounting Act.

After the end of a financial year, the management board shall prepare the annual accounts and activity report pursuant to the procedure provided by law. The management board shall submit the reports to the general meeting within six months after the end of the financial year.
after the end of the financial year. If a non-profit association has an auditor or audit committee, the auditor's report or the opinion of the audit committee shall be appended to the reports. Approval of the annual report shall be decided by the general meeting. Approved annual reports shall be signed by all members of the management board.

3.2.4. Hungary

In general, no restriction exists on the control of not-for-profit organisations by other organisations or persons. For public foundations, which are formed by a government entity, control is exercised by the founding entity.

Hungarian law provides few specific requirements regarding governance of non-governmental organisations109.

Generally, larger organisations have both a governing body and a supervisory body. This is required for Public Benefit Organisations (PBOs) with annual income that exceeds five million Hungarian Forint110. Public benefit companies must establish supervisory boards and choose auditors111. While the intent is to separate operations from oversight, recent research indicates that this does not always occur.

Article 11 of the Law on PBOs sets out the authority of the supervising body: it may request reports and information from officers and employees as well as inspect books and documents. It is empowered to convene the governing body if its concerns are not addressed. Similarly, the supervisory board of a non-profit company is required to call a meeting of members upon finding violations of conditions for pursuing public service activities112.

A recent law provides an additional transparency mechanism for PBOs by mandating that meetings of the PBOs "leading body" be open to the public113.

The public prosecutor is responsible for supervision of associations, foundations and PBOs, and can take action in court where necessary114.

To the extent that an organisation undertakes activities requiring special regulation, e.g., the operation of a health care facility or school, other competent authorities will also have a supervisory role as well115. Courts have authority to nullify decisions, adopt new decisions, convene the governing body of the organisation, appoint new supervisors, suspend operations or dissolve the organisation.

With regard to PBOs, Article 21 of the Law on PBOs states that tax audits will be carried out by the competent tax authority based on the location of the registered office of the PBO; that issues related to the use of public funds will be overseen by the National Audit Office.

PBOs must make their records and reports, as well as a "public benefit report" on their operations, open to the public116. The public benefit report must include a financial report; information on the utilization of budgetary support, use of assets and targeted grants; the extent of support received from governmental bodies; the value and amount of benefits granted to operating officers; and a brief summary of public benefit activities.

3.2.5. Latvia

Audit by supervisory organs:

The Law on Public Organisations provides broad oversight responsibilities and rights to the government: "State institutions shall monitor and control the activities of public organisations and their associations" and that officials "within the limits of their official duties, shall control whether the public organisations and their associations comply with the laws and other regulations, and whether their activities are in compliance with the by-laws. They shall have the right to participate in the meetings of public organisations, as well as acquaint themselves with the relevant documentation of the public organisations. Other interference with the activities of public organisations and their associations shall be prohibited."117

Section 25 states that oversight responsibility for economic activities falls to the State Financial Inspection. For NPOs, oversight responsibility falls to State Control, the State Finance Inspection, Enterprise Registry and audits are to occur at least once every two years.\textsuperscript{118}

Sanctions:

Courts may also be involved in the oversight of non-governmental organisations. The Law on POs provides that court action can address an organisation’s misconduct or illegal action based upon the application of members of the organisation or the Ministry of Justice. The court has the ability to:

- cancel the decisions adopted by the institution or official of the public organisation which are illegal or do not comply with the by-laws;

- remove the officials or institutions the election of whom does not comply with the by-laws;

- demand that the public organisation obviate other kind of illegal activity or breach of the by-laws.

\textit{(a) Foundations}

At the end of the reporting year, the board shall prepare and submit an annual report in accordance with the provisions of Article 52 of the Law on Foundations and Associations.

Persons who donate to the foundation may at any time find out about the activities of the foundation, and familiarise themselves will all documents, except accounting documents and information on other persons who have made donations to the foundation.\textsuperscript{119}

\textit{(b) Associations}

The board shall ensure that the members of the association have all necessary information and documents in regard to the operations of the association and shall also prepare a relevant report at their request.

The general meeting shall control the activities of all administrative bodies. For this purpose, the general meeting has the right to determine an internal audit. Board members have the responsibility to provide all information and documents necessary for the audit to the auditing body. The auditor shall prepare an opinion on the results of the audit which shall be presented to the general meeting.\textsuperscript{120}

At the end of a reporting year, the board shall prepare an annual report of the association in accordance with the Law on Accounting and other regulatory enactments.

The annual report of the association shall be reviewed by the auditing body of the business and financial operations or a sworn auditor. Members of the association have the right to familiarise themselves with the annual report.

Every year, not later than by 31 March, the annual report shall be submitted by the association to the State Revenue Service and the register institution.\textsuperscript{121}

Internal mechanism for control:

The Law on Public Organisations requires that Public Organisation have a “permanently functioning governing body or administration, as well as a body of audit of the administrative and financial activities.”\textsuperscript{122} Article 23 of the Law on Public Organisations states that "not less than twice a year the entrepreneurial and other economic and financial activities of a public organisation or an association of public organisations shall be checked and its bookkeeping audited by an audit institution of the public organisation or association of public organisations."

The Law on Non-Profit Organisations states that participants have the right to take part in the management of the NPO\textsuperscript{123}.

The Law on Association and Foundation provides greater detail on the necessary structure of associations and foundations, respectively in Articles 32-51 and 92-98. Associations are to be governed by the meeting of members and the Board and such other administrative bodies as may be created by the articles of association\textsuperscript{124}. Among the powers of the meeting of members are the election and dismissal of members of the Board, audit institutions and other institutions specified by the articles of association (Article 34). Similarly, foundations are to chiefly govern by a Board of at least three persons and such other bodies as are created by the articles of association (Articles 92-93).

The Law on Association and Foundation requires a report to members regarding the “the management of the association”; groups must

The failure to meet these requirements may lead to involuntary termination of an organisation (Articles 55 and 104). In addition, this law provides a foundation’s donors with the right to “examine all documents, except the accounting records and information regarding other persons who have given donations to the foundation” (Article 102).

3.2.8. Poland

For associations under its jurisdiction, local supervisory authorities have the right to inspect documents as well as require the submission of decisions and other information. If there is reason to believe that an association is not complying with the law or its statute, authorities may order a correction, issue a reprimand, or apply to a court for stronger action. Courts may impose various sanctions from annulling actions to dissolution in the most serious cases.130

If a foundation is seen to act in violation of the law or its statutes, the supervisory ministry or the Voivod (county) may order the correction of improper action or where challenged actions constitute a serious violation, may demand replacement of a board. Supervisory authorities may also apply to the court for a range of actions, including the appointment of a government administrator.131.

Under the Law on Public Benefit Organisations, supervision of groups with PBO status is centralized, generally with the ministry that is responsible for social welfare, currently the Ministry of Economic, Labour and Social Policy. The ministry is to inspect PBOs, and prepare reports to which PBOs must respond in writing. If problems identified are not corrected, the ministry may apply to the registration court to revoke it PBO status or remove the organisation from the State Court Register.132

(a) Foundations

Foundations must produce annual reports of activities to the supervising agency which are also to be made public133.

The Law on Foundations puts authority for the organisational statute and structure with the founder134 but only states that governing board shall direct foundations activities and represent it to the world135.

The act requires foundations to prepare annual reports for the supervisory body; the reports are also made available to the public. Such a report should include, among others, the following:

1. information on the amount of obtained profits, listing their sources (e.g. heritage, legacy, donation, means from public funds (among others from the state budget and the local

Foundations are obliged to keep accounting books.

If a foundation is seen to act in violation of the law or its statutes, the supervisory ministry or the Voivod (county) may order the correction of improper action or where challenged actions constitute a serious violation, may demand replacement of a board. Supervisory authorities may also apply to the court for a range of actions, including the appointment of a government administrator.\(^{136}\)

\(\text{\textbf{(b) Associations}}\)

The Law on Associations does not require associations to prepare or publish an annual report.

The Law on Associations provides basic autonomy to associations in regard to their organisational structure -- an association independently sets its structures\(^{137}\), the highest authority shall be the general assembly of members (in some situations, an assembly of delegates) but in addition to a board, there must be an internal auditing organ\(^{138}\).

The Ministry shall supervise the performance of the Foundation’s activities in accordance with public benefit purpose of its establishment. For this reason the Ministry shall evaluate the content of the Annual Report. If the Ministry finds any deficiencies, it shall invite the Foundation to correct those deficiencies within a given time limit and simultaneously to inform the Ministry about undertaken measures. If the Foundation has not redressed the deficiencies the Ministry will file a petition.

The Registration Office oversees, whether the non-profit organisation fulfils its purpose and provides the generally beneficial services for which it has been established. In order to do so, the Registration Office evaluates the content of the Annual Reports and in the case of detecting deficiencies the Registration Office notifies the bodies of the non-profit organisation, demands correction, as well as fulfilment of the obligations set by the Law. If such a correction is not made, the Registration Office is entitled to file a motion to terminate the non-profit organisation.

The Ministry controls the registration and supervision of non-profit organisations as preceded by registration offices.143 Everybody has the right of access to information on the use of property of a non-profit organisation.

3.2.10. Slovenia

(a) Foundations

The law authorizes the state to exercise much more direct supervision over foundations. The ministry with competence over the activities of the foundation is envisaged as the supervisory body (hereinafter the competent body). This is the same ministry responsible for issuing founding permits. In some cases, a foundation may appeal the decisions of the competent body. Such appeals are deemed to be administrative disputes and, therefore, there is a judicial review of decisions.

(b) Associations

Under the Law on Associations, the state does not exercise supervisory power over associations beyond the point of initial registration. Other laws covering specific fields of activity could stipulate additional obligations for associations functioning in these areas.

Any decision by the state against an association or its administration is subject to administrative review or appeal in court.

4. Tax Status

4.1. Tax System

Tax system is appealing on the idea that organisations that meet certain requirements get registered in order to achieve a special status. As was mentioned previously (see chapter 7.2 Accreditation/Seal of Approval) tax status can be considered as a form of accreditation or monitoring, however the tax system should be treated as a separate system because it is compounds segments of both systems.

4.1.1. Income/Profits Tax

All of the countries in the EU 10 provide some relief from the profits/income tax for charitable organisations.

The most common exemption is for membership fees and other donations. Mostly all countries in the region exempt such funds from the income of charitable organisations. A few countries consider not only whether the recipient organisation is charitable in nature, but also whether the donated funds will be used for charitable purposes. For instance, the Czech Republic and Poland exempts all donations to foundations, funds, and public benefit companies. It also exempts donations to other legal persons if they are used for certain designated charitable purposes.

The qualification requirements for exemption depend in large part on the scope of the exemption. In many countries, the registering authority’s decision is the source of both legal entity status and tax benefits. This may also be the case for some tax benefits extended only to charitable organisations.

Estonia, Hungary, Latvia, Poland have developed a more elaborate system, under which a charitable organisation seeking certain tax benefits must specifically apply for exempt status. Only once its application is approved, and its name added to a list of exempt organisations, does the organisation become eligible for those tax benefits. This approach allows a legal system to differentiate between the standards for organisation as a non-profit and the higher standards for various tax preferences. Estonia, Hungary and Poland allow only charitable, public benefit organisations on the list of organisations eligible for the highest tax benefits.

143 Law on Non-Profit Organisations, Chapter 6, Section 35.
In jurisdictions requiring separate application for tax benefits, there is some variation in who has responsibility for the master list of exempt organisations. In Latvia, the list is kept by the Minister of Finance, in Hungary - by the courts. In Malta separate law prescribes list of exempt organisations.

4.1.2. Value Added Tax
All countries in EU 10 impose a value added tax upon the sale or transfer of goods and services. Firstly is simply to exempt them from the VAT system. This ensures that they do not have to collect and pay over VAT on goods and services that they provide, but does not allow them to recover VAT paid on purchased goods and services. Another option is - “zero-rate” their goods and services, allowing charitable organisations to avoid collecting VAT and also seek rebates for amounts paid.

In addition to any exemptions granted to charitable organisations in general, many countries either exempt certain goods or services entirely or tax them at preferential rates. Many of these goods and services are of a sort typically provided by charitable organisations.

4.1.3. Percentage Laws
Several countries such as Hungary, Slovakia, Lithuania, and Poland have enacted laws that allow taxpayers to designate 1-2% of their taxes paid to be distributed to NGOs of their choice. The advantage of these laws is that taxpayers provide a source of funding for NPOs not controlled directly by the government. This allows charitable organisations to compete for these funds, and choose activities that meet needs of the public.

4.2. Country Information

4.2.2. Czech Republic
(a) Income Tax/Others\(^{144}\)

\(^{144}\) The main laws, which regulate tax issues in the Czech Republic, are the following:
- Act No. 588/1992 on Value Added Tax, as amended by later laws;
- Act No. 593/1992 on Depreciation Reserves for Income Tax Base Establishment, as amended by later laws;
- Act No. 587/1992 on Consumption and Excise Tax, as amended by later laws;
- Act No. 16/1993 on Highway Tax, as amended most recently by later laws;

Income from economic activities related to the statutory purposes of an NGO is subject to a reduced tax. All related income is exempt from income tax up to 300 000 Czech Koruna (approximately € 9 500). Revenues (i.e., incomes minus related expenditures) at the end of fiscal year over this amount are reduced before taxation by 30% or 1 million Czech Koruna (approximately € 32 000), whichever is less, if the proceeds are used for public benefit purposes. However, since NGOs are required to allocate earnings and expenses for each individual activity separately, they may face a greater income tax liability (despite the 30% tax base reduction) than for-profit entities.

First of all, the law distinguishes a corporate tax payer “which has not been founded or established for business purposes” from other tax payers. This category explicitly includes “interest associations of legal entities explicitly not established for... income generating activities, associations of citizens including trade unions, political parties and political movements, registered churches and religious communities, public benefit corporations, foundations and funds, public higher educational institutions, municipalities, organisational components of the state administration, regional self-governments, contributory organisations, state funds and other subjects defined so by a special law. Taxpayers in this category must always report incomes derived from advertisements, membership fees, and property rentals. However, the incomes from "...membership fees paid in accordance with by-laws of an association, trade union, political party, and political movement" and incomes "...from church collections for liturgical acts and members' contributions in the case of registered churches and religious communities" must be reported but are exempt from the Corporate Income Tax. Tax-exempt status is also given to certain ecologically beneficial activities and incomes from lotteries organised according to special regulations, if more than 90% of the profit is used for public benefit purposes.

For taxpayers in this category, incomes originating from "...activities corresponding to their mission, if the expenses are higher than the incomes and the relevant activities are well defined in statute, by-laws, establishment proposal or founding agreements of such a legal entity", they are not taxable. Similarly treated are incomes from "...donations and other forms of state or municipal subsidy, if these are provided in compliance with a special regulation" as well as incomes from "interest from savings on a current bank account". Exempt from income tax are also incomes of foundations generated from its registered endowment, including rentals from real estates registered as a part of the endowment.

If an organisation conducts both exempt activities and activities on which it must pay tax (e.g. advertising or property rental activities), it is required to pay tax on the income of the non-exempt activities only to the extent that income exceeds the expenses incurred to produce it. In general, this corresponds to the notion of a taxable income, as defined for the purpose of the corporate income tax for any legal entity. However, the civil organisations in the above mentioned category must account separately for incomes and related expenditures in the case of any activity, which generates net income. This, of course, creates a source of dispute about the accounting mechanisms that are required to regulate these arrangements. In other words, only for this category of legal entities the law stipulates that the account books must separate the tax-exempt incomes and related expenses from other taxable incomes and related expenses. By properly doing their accounting, civil organisations may avoid unnecessary problems during the randomly organised supervisory audits conducted by the taxation officers, on the expense of significantly higher cost of accounting in the case of greater organisations with many types of activities.

For VAT purposes, a turnover exceeding 90% of the profit is used for public benefit purposes.

For tax payers in this category, incomes originating from "...activities corresponding to their mission, if the expenses are higher than the incomes and the relevant activities are well defined in statute, by-laws, establishment proposal or founding agreements of such a legal entity", they are not taxable. Similarly treated are incomes from "...donations and other forms of state or municipal subsidy, if these are provided in compliance with a special regulation" as well as incomes from "interest from savings on a current bank account". Exempt from income tax are also incomes of foundations generated from its registered endowment, including rentals from real estates registered as a part of the endowment.

By properly doing their accounting, civil organisations may avoid unnecessary problems during the randomly organised supervisory audits conducted by the taxation officers, on the expense of significantly higher cost of accounting in the case of greater organisations with many types of activities.

(b) VAT

Under the VAT law that went into effect May 1, 2004, the standard VAT rate is 19%, with a 5% rate applied to a few goods and services. NGOs are no longer exempt from VAT on supplies relating to their statutory purposes, as was formerly the case. Instead, VAT exemptions are limited to the following:

1. income from rent,
2. educational services provided by accredited universities and accredited vocational training facilities,
3. health services provided by accredited hospitals, medical care professionals, and institutions, and goods related to these services, and
4. social services provided according to special regulation by state or charitable private organisations.

VAT must be paid by anyone whose turnover exceeds 1 million Czech Koruna (about € 32 000) within a fiscal year (or in the current fiscal year after May 1, 2004). Also, any legal entity, including an NGO or attorney, who accepts any service from any VAT payer within the EU must report it within 15 days and pay VAT. The penalty for disobeying this requirement is severe: up to 10% of the turnover since the beginning of fiscal period.

The VAT generally applies to all transactions of those taxable persons whose total turnover during the three preceding calendar months was greater than 750 000 Czech Koruna (approx. € 24 000).

Transactions resulting from the main activities of legal entities not established for entrepreneurial purposes are exempt for VAT. Also any educational activities at educational organisations and provision of goods for educational purposes of these organisations are VAT exempt. Other transactions are liable to VAT.

148 E.g. Czech Red Cross.
149 Special regulations are other laws or government regulations issued for certain purposes, such as regulations under which associations may be given subsidies from the state budget.
Thus, if an association runs a hostel on its property and if that is its main activity according to its by-laws, the services provided in the hostel are not subject to the VAT. On the other hand, because civic organisations are not, in general, taxable persons under the VAT, they may not apply for reimbursement of the VAT paid to the providers of goods and services.

4.2.3. Estonia

The exact requirements for applying for tax-exempt status and deadlines are indicated in the Government Order (of 11 June 1996). In order to qualify, an organisation’s activities must be connected with support to charity, science, culture, education, sports, health care, social welfare, environment protection, or religious congregations in the public interest. The respective list of organisations is determined by local divisions of the Tax Department on a case-by-case basis each year. The final decision is made by the Government.

(a) Income Tax/Others

The Estonian Income Tax Act grants all non-profit associations and foundations tax exemption on entrance and membership fees as well as on interest paid by Estonian financial institutions. In the case of donations, only NPOs listed by the government have the right to tax exemption. This list is approved by the local tax authorities and Ministry of Finance. Only NPOs acting for public benefit in the fields of education, culture, science, environment, health, sports, social welfare, and religion are permitted to be placed on the list. The list is reviewed annually and consists of approximately 1000-1500 NPOs.

Excerpt from Income Tax Act, Passed 15 December 1999:

The Government of the Republic shall, by an order, approve a list of non-profit associations and foundations benefiting from income tax incentives (hereinafter the list). A legal person entered in the register of religious associations pursuant to the Churches and Congregations Act is deemed to be a non-profit association benefiting from income tax incentives.

A non-profit association or a foundation shall be entered in the list if the objective of the activities of the association or foundation is the charitable support of science, culture, education, sport, law enforcement, health care, social welfare, nature protection, or cultural autonomy of a national minority, or the support of religious associations or religious societies in the public interest, and if it meets the following requirements:

1. the association or foundation does not distribute its assets or income, grant material assistance or monetarily appraisable benefits to its founders, members, members of the management or controlling body, nor to a spouse, direct blood relative, sister, brother, descendant relative of a sister or brother, direct relative of a spouse, or sister or brother of a spouse of any of the above mentioned persons;

2. upon the dissolution of the association or foundation, the assets remaining after satisfying the claims of creditors are transferred to a non-profit association or foundation pursuing similar goals or to a legal person in public law, the state or a local government;

3. the administrative expenses of the association or foundation do not exceed the rate justified by the nature of its activities and the objectives specified in its articles of association;

4. the association or foundation does not pay higher remuneration to its employees or members of the management or controlling body than is paid for similar work in business.

A non-profit association or foundation is not included in the list if:

1. it is engaged in business as its principal activity or uses business income for purposes other than those specified in its articles of association;

2. it has tax arrears for which no payment schedule has been arranged;

3. it is undergoing dissolution or bankruptcy proceedings;

4. the documents submitted by the non-profit association or foundation for inclusion in the list do not meet the requirements established by legislation;

5. it has repeatedly failed to file reports or tax returns with the tax administrator during the terms and pursuant to the procedure prescribed by legislation.

The Government has the right to delete a non-profit association or foundation from the list if it becomes evident that the non-profit association or foundation does not meet the requirements or

1) if the non-profit association or foundation has failed to report changes made in its articles of association to the regional tax centre of the Tax and Customs Board within thirty days after an entry concerning the change is made in the non-profit associations and foundations register, or

2) if the non-profit association or foundation derives income from activities not specified in its articles of association.

The Government of the Republic shall establish the procedure for compiling the list, the documents to be submitted for the inclusion of a non-profit association or foundation in the list, and the procedure for inclusion of persons in and exclusion of persons from the list.150

Income tax on expenses not related to business

A resident company shall pay income tax on expenses not related to business unless income tax has been paid on such expenses.

Expenses not related to business are:

1. entrance and membership fees paid to non-profit associations, unless participation in such associations is directly related to the business of the taxpayer;

2. payments concerning which the taxpayer does not have a source document in compliance with the requirements prescribed in legislation regulating accounting;

3. expenses incurred or payments made in order to purchase services not related to the business of the taxpayer;

4. expenses incurred or payments made in order to fulfil obligations not related to the business of the taxpayer.

A resident non-profit association, foundation or religious association which is a legal person shall pay income tax on expenses and payments and on expenses incurred in purchasing services or property not related to the activities specified in the person’s articles of association (including business permitted by the articles of association).

A resident legal person shall pay income tax on the total amount of the loans and advance payments made in a calendar month to natural persons associated with the legal person, which exceeds 50 per cent of the total amount of the payments subject to social tax pursuant to the Social Tax Act and made by the taxpayer during the preceding calendar month. Loans and advance payments refunded during the same calendar month by natural persons associated with the resident legal person, the cost of goods and services purchased out of the aforementioned advance payments during the same calendar month, and the size of salaries or service fees paid out of such advance payments shall be deducted from the total amount of the loans and advance payments specified in the previous sentence.151

NPOs are granted tax exemption on import VAT if the goods are irrecoverable foreign aid152 and if they are purchased for the money received as irrecoverable foreign aid. In these cases, the prepaid VAT will be refunded. Additionally, churches and religious organisations have VAT exemption on the electricity they consume.

According to the Value Added Tax Act “enterprise” means the independent economic activity of a person in the course of which goods or services are transferred for a charge or without charge. A notary’s and a bailiff’s professional activities are also deemed to be enterprise. Employment under an employment contract, public service and activities aimed at achieving the objectives specified in the articles of association of a non-profit association or foundation are deemed not to be enterprise153.

Under the conditions and pursuant to the procedure established by the Minister of Finance, value added tax is not imposed on the import by state, rural municipality or city agencies, or non-profit associations or foundations benefiting from income tax incentives entered in the corresponding list approved by the Government of the Republic on the basis of the Income Tax Act, or legal persons entered in the Estonian Register of Churches, Congregations and Associations of Congregations of the Republic of goods exempt from excise duties received as state foreign aid or purchased with money received as state foreign aid or allocated from foreign loans taken by the state. For the purposes of this Act, state foreign aid is deemed to be the irrecoverable aid which is provided by an international organisation, foreign government, foreign local government or foreign non-governmental organisation and applied for, received or intermediated by a state, rural municipality or city agency, or non-profit association or foundation registered in Estonia151.

4.2.4. Hungary

Tax exemptions.

All registered non-governmental organisations are entitled to claim benefits available under the corporate income tax law.155 Groups that have been designated as Public Benefit Organisations (PBOs) by virtue of activities identified in Article 26 of the Law on PBOs are entitled to greater tax benefits than groups not so designated. And organisations that meet additional requirements may be designated “prominently public benefit organisations” eligible for additional benefits.156 Article 6 of the Law on PBOs identifies a number of tax benefits:

1. exemption from company tax after its activity in keeping with the goal spelt out in its founding document;
2. preferential treatment concerning company tax after its business activities;
3. preferential treatment concerning local tax;
4. preferential treatment duties;
5. preferential treatment customs duties; and
6. other preferential treatment spelt out by legal norms

There is no tax on grants or membership dues. The law also makes the value of services provided by a PBO exempt from the recipient’s personal income tax. In order to receive tax preferences however, PBOs must not have public debts.

Hungarian NGOs are exempt from paying corporate tax on all income except income derived from unrelated economic activities.

Hungary generally taxes an organisation’s "entrepreneurial activities," defined as "economic activities aimed at or resulting in the acquisition of income or property."157 For a foundation or an association "the tax base ... is the pre-tax result of its entrepreneurial activities."158

All income related to an NGO’s statutory activities is deemed non-entrepreneurial and therefore exempt from corporate tax. This exemption includes an NGO’s income from grants, donations, membership fees, and related economic activities. Income from unrelated economic activities, however, is subject to taxation as entrepreneurial.

(a) Income Tax/Others

Other taxes. Associations, foundations and public benefit companies are conditionally exempt from local building and land taxes, provided that they did not pay corporate income tax in the previous calendar year. Gifts and inheritances for public benefit purposes are exempt. However, if a PBO has either public debts or income from business activities that exceed the tax-exempt threshold, a portion of a donation may be taxable. Civil society organisations are exempt from paying local communal tourism and business taxes under the same conditions as real estate taxes. They are also exempt from certain fees for court and administrative proceedings, including registration, gift, and inheritances fees.

(b) VAT

The VAT rate is 25% although there is a preferential rate of 12% for certain a product. Non-governmental organisations are not automatically eligible for exemptions or reductions of the VAT. However, Act LXXIV of 1992 on Value-Added Tax (VAT Act) gives tax authorities the discretion to permit the refund of VAT to PBOs meeting certain conditions. Among these conditions is the requirement that the PBO not pay any personnel related expenses at all (including e.g., reimbursement of expenses related to volunteer work). (Section 71) Therefore in practice hardly any NGO may take advantage of this opportunity.

Generally, all organisations engaged in economic activities are subject to the VAT. The standard rate of VAT is 25%, with some goods and services taxed at 15% and very few at 5%.

Sales of certain products and services are exempt, including health care, social care, public radio and television broadcasting, accredited adult education, hostels and dormitories, and non-professional sports.159

Upon approval of the Tax Authority, an NGO can be exempt from paying any VAT, and can therefore reclaim VAT paid, if it operates on a fully voluntary basis, with no compensation paid to any members or officers, except that prominent public

4.2.5. Latvia

The Law on Public Organisations (PO) and the Law on Non-Profit Organisations (NPO) do not identify specific tax benefits for NGOs, stating only that organisations must pay taxes in accordance with other laws. The Law on POs does provide certain exemptions for Open Public Foundations, which are organisations created to ensure that donated funds are used to address particular public needs. And generally, income from non-business activities is exempt from income tax for both POs and NPOs.

\textit{(a) Income Tax/Others}

Incomes from economic activities that are directly related to the purposes of an organisation are not taxed, but all other income is subject to regular taxes under the Law on Enterprise Income Tax.

Other taxes. No exemption or reduction is available to POs and NPOs on the social tax of 35\% of payroll (26\% paid by the employer and 9\% by the employee). Property tax relief is available to some POs under regulations of the Cabinet of Ministers as well as from local governments.

Tax benefits for contributors. Tax relief is available to individual and corporate donors of NGOs if the recipient organisation is on a list established by the Ministry of Finance. Entry onto this list requires an annual application and the submission of financial and other documents in accordance with regulations issued by the Cabinet of Ministers. The process can take several months, meaning that groups are often without the ability to receive tax-exempt donations for a period of time each year. For eligible groups, donors can deduct 85\% of value of donations up to 20\% of the donor’s taxable income. Donations to three NGOs – the Latvian Culture Foundation, the Latvian Olympic Committee and the Latvian Children’s Fund -- are eligible for a 90\% deduction\textsuperscript{161}. There are no exemptions related to gift or inheritance taxes and if the activities of an eligible organisation do not correspond to the purposes in its basic documents, tax benefits can be rescinded.

4.2.6. Lithuania

Generally, all types of organisations with sponsorship status under the Law on Charities and Sponsorship\textsuperscript{164} do not pay taxes on charity and sponsorship grants or donations either given or received and are not subject to profit taxes for lawfully undertaken commercial activities.

The following income shall be exempt from tax:

- benefits by non-profit entities to their members paid out from the funds accumulated from membership fees, with the exception of benefits that are paid to individuals connected with those entities through employment relations or corresponding relations and that are not indicated in the other subparagraphs of this paragraph;

- income received as charity in accordance with the procedure prescribed by the Law of the Republic of Lithuania on Charity and Sponsorship (hereinafter referred to as the Law on Charity and Sponsorship);

- income received by inheritance, which is subject to tax under legal acts of the Republic of Lithuania on estate tax;

- scholarships to students and pupils of educational establishments financed from the funds of non-profit entities established in accordance with the procedure prescribed by laws of the Republic of Lithuania and foreign countries, provided the payment of scholarships is provided in legal acts regulating activities of those entities and a recipient of a scholarship is not a member, employee of the entity paying the scholarship or a member of the family of a member or employee of that entity, as well as provided that scholarship is not related to the work carried out or intended to be carried out, or the services provided or intended to be provided for those entities by a recipient of that scholarship;

When computing taxable profit, the following income shall be eliminated from non-operating revenue:

- sums received for charity and sponsorship regulated by the Republic of Lithuania Law on Charity and Sponsorship;

- income of all religious communities and centres (administrative institutions of higher level): donations, income from the sale of property received as charity, provided said income is assigned for building, renovation and reconstruction of the house of worship, also for charity, culture and education.\textsuperscript{166}

The amount of the total taxable profit shall be reduced by the tax-exempt amounts assigned for charity and sponsorship and payments from profit on which the natural person’s income tax is levied. Taxable profit which is profit subject to taxation shall be established upon deducting the above amounts.

If the enterprise shows a loss (negative results) during the taxable year, it shall be permitted to carry the losses over to the following taxable year. The carry-over of the taxable year losses shall be permitted for the maximum period of five taxable years measured from the year following the formation of losses. No carry-over of losses shall be permitted upon the expiry of the five-year period.

Taxable profit of legal persons engaged in non-commercial activity shall be computed as difference between the income from paid services and works and their performance costs.

In order to benefit from tax exemptions, NGOs are supposed to have special status at the Centre of Registers. This, however, will be granted largely automatically at the request of the NGO concerned. The status can be cancelled for certain types of misbehaviour (such as money laundering or tax fraud) or at the request of NGO. Such status for newly established NGOs will be granted on registration if the NGO requires it, and in the case of existing NGOs the status will be granted virtually on request.

Associations and charity/support funds are exempted from the real estate tax, provided that the property in question is used for their activities in the public interest and not for business.

If NGOs manage, use or dispose of state or municipal property, their activities will be audited in accordance with the Act on Internal Control and Internal Audit (10-12-2002 No IX-1253)\textsuperscript{167}.

(a) Income Tax/Others

All non-profits are allowed to engage in mission-related economic activities, and will not be liable to profit tax. Non-profits paying income tax from economic activities above 1 million Lithuanian Litas per annum (approx. € 290.000).

(b) VAT

The Law on Value Added Tax (LVAT) states that services provided by non-profit organisations in the areas of social services rendered to children or the elderly, educational and training services, certain non-commercial cultural and sports services shall be exempt from VAT\textsuperscript{168}. (Articles 20-23)

Services supplied to their members by political parties, trade unions and other non-profit making legal persons set up and operating on the membership basis shall be exempt from VAT provided that the services conform to the aims of the legal person determined in the by-laws/regulations thereof and no consideration is obtained for the above services in addition to membership fees. The provisions of this paragraph shall be applied to the activities of non-profit making legal persons only where the payment of members’ fee may be linked to the specific service supplied for the benefit of a specific member\textsuperscript{169}.

In addition, an organisation need not register as a taxable person if the annual turnover of its commercial activities is less than 100,000 Lithuanian Litas (€ 29,000). Non-commercial or charitable activities are not included.

The company rate of tax is a flat-rate 35% on gross income less allowable deductions.

Malta operates the ‘full imputation’ system of taxation so that any tax paid by the company is imputed to the shareholder in the event of a dividend distribution. The tax withheld by the company from the dividend it distributes is, therefore, no more than a payment on account of the shareholder’s own liability.

A company is required to file a tax return of its income for the accounting period which is a printed form issued by the tax authorities. This return contains a breakdown of the sources of income; a computation of the company’s income liable to tax; a list of shareholders; details relative to dividends distributed and of the movement of reserves; a breakdown of the taxed profits available for distribution; a list of directors and the remuneration, fees etc. paid to them; and a reconciliation of the amount of wages and salaries shown on the accounts with the amounts declared to the tax authorities.

The time limit for the filing of tax returns supported by audited accounts is June 30 of the year of assessment. When the accounting date proceeds December 31, the return should be filed within 6 months after the accounting date.

Heavy fiscal penalties are imposed in case of non-compliance. These penalties are enforceable through administrative action by the tax authorities without the need of court intervention.

Taxpayers:

The 3 principal classes of taxpayers recognized by Law are:

1. Individuals (i.e. natural persons);
2. Limited liability companies:
3. any company incorporated under the Laws of Malta, including a partnership en commandite the capital of which is divided into shares;
4. any body of persons, incorporated or registered outside Malta, and similar in nature to (a).
5. any cooperative society duly registered under the appropriate laws in force in Malta.);
6. Ecclesiastical entities.

Partnerships are treated as conduits for tax purposes which mean that partnership profits are taxed in the hands of the individual partners unless they are registered as partnerships en commandite with capital divided into shares. Joint Ventures are treated as partnerships for all purposes of tax law.

VAT was reintroduced as from 1st January, 1999, at a rate of 15% with a rate of 5% applicable to tourist accommodation. Certain goods are VAT exempt.

Allowable deductions are numerous and include the following

Business expenses. They must be incurred during the year preceding the year of assessment and must be wholly and exclusively incurred in the production of income. Any amounts in excess of normal commercial rates are disallowed in an assessment. Business expenses incurred outside Malta that are allowed as a deduction include reasonable head office and management expenses.

Rental costs. Rental costs are normally fully tax deductible.

Devaluation: The amounts charged by a company in its accounts are not immediately allowable as a deduction. They must be replaced, in most cases, by the statutory allowances at the prescribed rates. 3 kinds of allowances are available:

1. The initial allowance is fixed at 20% for plant and machinery and 10% for industrial buildings and structures;
2. wear-and-tear allowance which is calculated by the reducing-balance method except in the case of certain categories of ships where the straight-line method may be used. When assets are transferred from one owner to another the reduced-balance value in the former owner’s hands is carried forward;
3. balancing allowance which comes into operation when an asset that has been given an initial allowance and a wear-and-tear allowance over its working life is finally sold, transferred, destroyed or, otherwise, put out of use. In this case a computation is necessary to determine whether the value upon disposal (if any) is equivalent to the book written-down value. If the disposal value is less, the deficiency is made good by the grant of a further allowance in the same year. If the disposal value is higher, the balance is brought back to charge also in the same year.

Employees’ wages. The employer must furnish the tax authorities annually with the prescribed details regarding the amounts of emoluments paid (whether to foreign or to Maltese employees) for the deduction to be granted.
Social security contributions. The social security payments that a company makes on behalf of its employees are fully deductible.

Interest. Any sum payable by way of interest on any borrowed money is an allowable deduction if the authorities are satisfied that the interest is payable on capital employed in acquiring income. Court interpretation has widened the meaning to include cases where the interest is due on the unpaid purchase price of commodities (e.g. in hire-purchase cases).

Royalties and service fees. Although these are an allowable deduction, payments to foreign affiliates that are higher than open-market payments may not be allowed. When the royalty payments are of a capital nature, the expenditure is not wholly allowable in the year in which incurred but is spread over a reasonable number of years according to its expected life-span. Whenever a royalty has been allowed as a deduction (irrespective of whether the deduction was of a capital or revenue nature), any sums receivable from the sale of any of the related patents or patents rights are taxable in the year in which received.

Service fees payable to non-residents must result from genuine business contracts and be of benefit to the local enterprise. Payment may be subject to deduction at source but, in such cases, the recipient usually asks for a proper assessment of tax due, claiming a deduction for expenses and the benefit of the lower rates of tax. Excessive claims for service fees are disallowed.

Charitable contributions. The deductibility of charitable and philanthropic contributions is very restricted and a donation will qualify as a deduction only if the authorities are satisfied that the expenditure has a promotional value.

Research and development. A deduction is available for any expenditure on scientific research. If the expenditure relates to items that qualify for depreciation in the normal way, the rules relating to wear and tear apply. Other expenses that do not so qualify are written off over 6 years.

Legal and accountancy fees. These fees paid in the normal course of the trade or businesses are fully deductible. Fees may not be deductible if they are connected with the setting up of or structural changes in the company, the purchase of capital items (in this case, however, it may be possible to capitalise the expense) or the preparation and defence of tax cases and appeals.

Losses. Any loss incurred may be set off against all other gains or profits made in the same year. Any unabsorbed balance is carried forward indefinitely until absorbed or until the company is dissolved in which case it is lost. No deduction is allowed for any loss incurred outside Malta that, had it been a profit and had it been retained outside Malta, it would not have been subject to Malta tax.

No depletion allowances are permissible. In fact, the Companies Act, 1995, specifically prohibits loss, diminution, exhaustion or withdrawal of capital. Furthermore, no allowance is made for any sort of reserve or provision for future expenses.

Group Taxation. A company is deemed to be a subsidiary of another company (and, therefore, in the same group of companies) if the parent company owns more than 50% of the ordinary share capital and voting rights of the subsidiary and is entitled to more than 50% of the profits available for distribution.

Malta’s tax legislation allows a company to surrender tax losses that may be set off against the tax profits of another company in the same group for the corresponding year of assessment. A company that has claimed losses from a group company may carry the losses forward and utilize them for set-off against future profits.

Tax accounting for companies

The 1994 amendments to Malta’s tax legislation introduced the requirement that a Maltese company’s taxed income is divided into the ‘Foreign Income Account’ and the ‘Maltese Taxed Account’. The Foreign Income Account comprises profits that originate from foreign source income such as profits arising from royalties, dividends, capital gains, interest, rent and other income derived from investments situated outside Malta. The Maltese Taxed Account contains the balance of the taxed income that has not been allocated to the Foreign Income Account.

4.2.8. Poland

(a) Income Tax/Others

Tax on economic activities. Income from business activity is tax exempt if used for public benefit purposes. The Law on PBOs also creates the possibility for NGOs to conduct payable statutory activity of public benefit as long as the fee does not exceed actual costs and the organisations meet salary limitations set out in the law. Earlier law restricted NGOs from charging fees for their services unless conducted as taxable economic activity\(^{170}\).

Apart from various tax exemptions, public benefit organisations have been given the possibility to collect 1% of individual income tax. Every citizen is given the right to donate 1% of his or her income tax to a selected NGO. That provides NGOs with additional source of financing.

\(\text{(b) VAT}\)

VAT Exemptions relate to goods and services, not organisations and include services in the field of scientific, technical, and economic information, research and development, education, health services and social welfare. A preferential rate of 7% (rather than the regular 22%) is available for certain products.

Article 33 of the Law on Associations identifies the sources of income for associations: member contributions, donations, legacies, inheritances, the proceeds of its activities, income from its property, and public support. The resources of simple associations are limited to member contributions.

The Law on Foundations states that foundations assets may include money, securities, and the movable property and real estate donated to the foundation (Article 3), but does not limit the resources on which it may draw.

Tax benefits from contributors

Contributors to associations and foundations may deduct donations up to 10% of taxes due for charitable, religious, environmental, fire protection and housing investment activities and up to 15% for science, education, culture, sports, rehabilitation, health and social welfare activities\(^{171}\).

The Law on PBOs provides additional support for groups with PBO status. Under Article 27, taxpayers may designate 1% of personal income tax due to groups that have PBO status.

Polish law does not limit the ability of foreign organisations to support Polish non-governmental organisations.

4.2.9. Slovakia

On January 1, 2004, a new Law on Income Tax came into force. Under the new law, the income of NGOs from donations and inheritance is generally not taxable\(^{172}\).

Further, associations, foundations, NI funds, and NPOs, as well as other NGOs, are generally exempt from taxation on income from statutory activities\(^{173}\). Associations are expressly exempt from the income tax on income from regular membership fees\(^{174}\).

The non-statutory economic activities of NGOs are taxed at the general income tax rate of 19%\(^{175}\), except that incomes from selling NGO property are tax exempt below 300 000 Slovak Koruna.

Associations, foundations, NI funds, and NPOs are also exempt from the tax on inheritance\(^{176}\).

The same NGOs are exempt from tax on donations, with regard to grants and donations, but only if their statutory activities consist of work in health care, humanitarian assistance, provision of social care, operation of schools and educational activities, science, physical fitness and sports for children and youth, or protection of the environment\(^{177}\).

\(\text{(a) Income Tax/Others}\)

Income Tax Law enables every natural or legal person resident in Slovakia to declare to the financial office their wish to allocate up to 2% of their income tax directly to one (in the case of a natural person) or more (in the case of a legal person) NGOs of their choice. Both donee and donor must have no outstanding debts relating to tax and dues payments, and the NGO must appear on a public list of those eligible to accept the donations. In addition, the recipient must use these assets to develop and protect intellectual values and human rights; protect and develop the environment; support and protect health and education; support sporting activities of children, youth, and handicapped citizens; provide social services; or preserve natural and cultural values\(^{178}\).

The Act No. 366/1999, on Income Taxes in the text of later amendments (the latest by the Act No. 568/2001), regulates all income tax issues of natural and legal persons, including NPOs.

\(^{170}\) Law on Public Benefit Organizations, Article 6-10.

\(^{171}\) Law on Personal Income Tax, Article 26(1) (9).

\(^{172}\) Law on Income Tax, Article 12 (1a).

\(^{174}\) Law on Income Tax, Article 13(2b).

\(^{175}\) Law on Income Tax, Articles 15 and 13(2e).

\(^{176}\) Law on Donations, Article 2(3).

\(^{177}\) Law on Donations, Article 5(3).

\(^{178}\) Income Tax Law, Article 50(5).
According to § 4 item m) all scholarships and grants provided by foundations and associations, including non-monetary support and any support or service provided by a Non-Profit Organisation with public benefit status are exempt from income tax of natural persons.

According to article 18(4), the incomes from profit-making activities of organisations not established for entrepreneurial purposes (i.e. all NPOs) are subject to corporate income tax. This explicitly includes incomes from selling or renting the property, as well as from advertisements, and from membership fees, which are taxed by a special tax rate. In the case of Associations, the membership fees are exempt from corporate income tax according to article 19(2) item a). Exempt are also incomes of universities and other schools generated from their statutory or related activities.

The subjects explicitly dealt with on the above basis with respect to the corporate income tax are interest associations of persons, professional chambers, Associations, trade unions, political parties and political movements, registered churches and religious congregations, Non-Profit Organisation with public benefit status, and organisations, whose not-for-profit feature can be derived from a special law or regulation, according to which they were established: foundations, unions of apartment owners, territorial corporations, governmental organisations, state funds, Not-Investment Funds, and several special state organisations.

According the article 48, the taxpayers may in a given term submit to its revenue officer or to the employer, who pays the income tax on behalf of the taxpayer a declaration, in which the taxpayer declares, that a sum not less than 20 Slovak Koruna and not exceeding 1% of the paid tax should be assigned directly to an correctly identified NPO (One Percent tax Assignment Provision). The list of NPO, to which this tax assignment is possible includes Associations, Foundations, No-Investment Funds, Non-Profit Organisations with public benefit status, establishments of churches and religious congregations, organisations with foreign element (international organisations or organisations of NPO type with a seat abroad), as well as the Slovak Red Cross. The assignment is possible to the NPO, if its statutory activities include one of the following: protection and development of spiritual values, protection of human rights, protection and creation of environment, protection and promotion of health and education, support of sport with children, youth and handicapped people, provision of social assistance, preservation of natural and cultural values.

According to article 20(4) both natural persons and legal entities, but not the above enumerated NPOs, may deduct from the tax base the value of monetary gifts and donations, as well as in-kind services provided to municipalities and other legal entities with a seat on the territory of the Slovak Republic, if the donation or contribution has been given during the taxation period and if the value of the donation is at least 2 000 Slovak Koruna. In total, this deduction may not exceed 2 percent of the tax base. Deductible are only donations for financing of science and learning, culture, including reconstruction of cultural monuments, schools, fire squads, support of youth, security of population, protection of animals, and for social, health, ecological, humanitarian, charitable purposes, to support religious activities of registered churches and religious congregations, support of sport and physical fitness. Deductible are also contributions to the State Fund for Development of Dwellings supporting construction of rented apartments.

The standard VAT rate is 20%, with a reduced rate of 14% applicable to certain services. (Article 10, VAT Law). Transactions involving educational and scientific services and goods, health care services and goods, and social care services are exempt from VAT.

An NGO, like any other legal entity, is required to register as a VAT taxpayer if its gross turnover for the past three calendar months exceeded 750 000 Slovak Koruna (approx.). Legal entities not meeting this threshold may apply to the Finance Administration to enter the VAT system and thereby be able to recover input VAT, but this decision is at the discretion of the Finance Administration.

4.2.10. Slovenia

Associations, foundations, and institutes that are established for ecological, humanitarian, benevolent or other not-for-profit purposes are exempted from profit tax on earnings generated from their not-for-profit activities. This includes donations, grants, membership dues, and income from statutory activities provided they are not conducted with the intent of generating a profit. An NGO must pay profit tax on all earnings from economic activities, even if they are related to the organisation’s statutory purposes. Certain goods and services supplied by NGOs are VAT exempt.

179 Value added tax Law, Articles 31-33.
180 Value added tax Law, Article 4(4).
181 Corporate Profit Tax Law, Article 6.
Existing tax legislation does not encourage the development of the not-for-profit sector. Tax exemptions and tax deductible contributions are permitted only in limited instances.

The existing provisions regarding exemptions and deductions are provided primarily by: the Law on Income Tax (Official Gazette of RS, no. 71/93); the Law on Sales Tax (Official Gazette of RS, nos. 4/92 and 71/93), which, for the most part, corresponds to other countries’ laws on value added tax; and the Law on Citizens’ Taxes (Official Gazette of RS, nos. 36/88, 48/90 and 7/93).

Foundations must conduct their financial management in accordance with the regulations which pertain to public establishments (as opposed to the regulations pertaining to commercial companies). Pursuant to Article 30 of the Law on Foundations, the administration must submit a report on its work and financial management during the past year to the competent body by the end of March each year. The competent body may request an audit of a foundation.

(a) Income Tax

Article 9 of the Law on Income Tax provides for tax deductions. The income tax base is reduced by the amount of voluntary contributions, or the value of gifts, for humanitarian, cultural, educational, scientific, recreational, ecological and religious purposes. In order to be deductible, these donations must flow to entities, that, pursuant to special regulations, are organised to perform such activities or are organisations serving physically disabled persons. However, pursuant to paragraph three of Article 9, the total amount of allowable deductions (including charitable donations and donations for the purchase of a home or securities) can be no more than 3% of income.

(b) VAT

Exemptions

Foreign donations are exempt from VAT. In addition, five categories of goods and services are exempt from VAT:

A) Activities of public interest, including the following:

1. hospital and medical care and directly related activities carried out by the public health service or its concessionaires;

2. social services and directly related goods provided by public social institutions, their concessionaires, or not-for-profit organisations such as charities and organisations for self-help for handicapped people;

3. goods and services closely related to child and youth care provided by public institutions, their concessionaires, or charitable organisations;

4. vocational training and nursery, school, and university education, including closely related goods and services, provided by public institutions or others;

5. goods and services provided by not-for-profit organisations with political, trade union, religious, patriotic, philosophical, humanitarian, or civil aims, in return for a membership fee, unless such exemption would distort competition;

7. cultural activities and related goods provided by public institutions and other cultural establishments recognized by public authorities;

8. the supply goods and services in connection with occasional fundraising events on behalf of organisations that perform exempt (above-mentioned) activities, unless such exemption would distort competition.

1. the purpose is not to obtain profit, and any profit that results will be allocated to providing the goods and services, or improving their provision, and not distributed;

2. the organisation is managed mostly on a voluntary basis by persons with no direct or indirect interest in the results of these activities;

3. the organisation charges prices accredited by the public authorities, or, if approval is not needed, charges prices no higher than this and no lower than prices charged by taxable persons; and

4. it is not likely that the exemption would distort competition, such as by giving taxable persons a less favourable position in the market.

5. The supply of goods or services is not exempt if:
6. it is not essential to the transaction exempted, or if the exempted activities can be provided without the goods or services; or

7. the basic purpose is to obtain additional income in direct competition with taxable entities liable for VAT.

B) Other activities: insurance and reinsurance, immovable properties except newly constructed immovable property, letting of residential houses and apartments, financial services, tax stamps and similar stamps, betting, gambling, and lotteries.

C) Import of certain type of goods, including the following:

D) Export of goods and international transport.

E) Special exemptions linked to the traffic of international goods.

Taxpayers' donations for humanitarian, cultural, scientific, health, educational, sport, and religious purposes, paid to organisations established for performing these activities, are not subject to VAT except when the amounts represent payment for goods or services.

A gambling location can be closed if prescribed by a precept.

Law on Lotteries and Gambling

Tax status:

According to the provisions of the Law on Lotteries and Gambling Tax and Fee:

Companies, which in accordance with the law have received a license to organise and run lotteries and games of chance, pay a lottery and gambling tax. The taxation object of the gambling tax is the gambling organiser – an enterprise, gambling venue location and gaming equipment.

The gambling tax shall be calculated each month for each gambling place of each slot machine and each game table in each place where gambling is carried out, including the month when the slot machine or game table was installed or dismantled.

The lotteries organiser pays a state fee for the issuance of a special license. Revenues from lotteries and gambling fee (payment for the special license) are paid in the state budget.

75% of revenues from the gambling tax are to be paid in the state budget, but 25% - in the budget of the local municipality in whose territory the gambling is organised.

Revenues from the national lotteries tax are to be paid in the state budget, but revenues from local lotteries tax – in the budget of the municipality in whose territory the lottery is organised.

Lotteries and Gambling Supervisory Inspection191:

The first games of chance in Latvia were organised and the gambling market began its rapid development in early nineties due to the regaining of independence. In the summer of 1991 the first casino was registered in Latvia. At that time also increased the amount of companies, who organised different kinds of lotteries in our country. But as at that moment there were no legislative acts that would regulate the organisation procedure of lotteries and gambling and also because of the insufficient supervision and control of the lotteries and gambling market by the state, its development was spontaneous and not regulated. At this period of time many small companies were involved in the organisation of lotteries and gambling, who could not always ensure the organisation of these games at the necessary level. Therefore the gaming business was discredited and the player suffered, as well as the revenue in the state budget from lotteries and gambling was very small.

To change the situation and to place the organisation of lotteries and gambling under strict state supervision and control as well as to create a special taxing system, the work on legislative acts regulating organisation of lotteries and gambling, supervision and control was begun in 1993. In June 1994 Saeima (Parliament) of the Republic of Latvia passed two laws "On Lotteries and Gambling" and "On Lotteries and Gambling Tax and Fee". These laws completely changed the situation in the gambling market and secured civilized and regulated development of the market.

Till those laws were enacted there was no united institution to deal with the supervision of the organisation of lotteries and gambling in Latvia. Ministry of Finance, Ministry of Internal Affairs and local authorities at the same time carried out control and licensing of lotteries and gambling. From the passing of the new law, the state politics in the sphere of lotteries and gambling were affected only by Ministry of Finance and one of its departments.

Since in most of European countries a special state institution supervises the organisation of lotteries and gambling, also in Latvia, considering the experience of those countries, in 1997 work was begun to establish such a special institution, which would deal with the supervision and control of lotteries and gambling.

Legal status and structure

Ministry’s of Finance Lotteries and Gambling Supervisory Inspection is an independent institution of state control and supervision that carries out its work under the supervision of the Ministry of Finance. Cabinet of Ministers confirms the director of the Inspection after the proposal of the Minister of Finance.

Scheme of the structure of the Lotteries and Gambling Supervisory Inspection

Lotteries and Gambling Supervisory Inspection consists of two departments - Supervision and Control Department (carries out direct supervision of gaming business) and Licensing and Analytical Department (carries out licensing, registration and labelling of slot machines and gambling devices, processing and analyses of statistical information, drafts projects of legislative acts in regard with organisation of lotteries and gambling). On December 31, 2001 there were 14 employees working in the Inspection.

Main functions and priorities

The aim of the work of Ministry’s of Finance Lotteries and Gambling Supervisory Inspection is to ensure abidance and execution of the provisions of laws and other legislative acts that regulate the sphere of lotteries and gambling. To the Inspection are delegated the following main functions:

191 http://www.iauvi.gov.lv/english/par_m/default.htm
1. to effect state politics in organisation of lotteries and gambling;
2. to carry out the licensing of organisers of lotteries and gambling;
3. to check the gambling equipment, to carry out its registration and issuing of labelling marks;
4. to ensure supervision and control over organisation of lotteries and gambling;
5. to draft projects of legislative acts related to organisation of lotteries and gambling;
6. to ensure systematic analyses of accounting and statistics in the lotteries and gambling market;
7. to cooperate with other state institutions and local authorities in order to ensure optimal control and supervision of lotteries and gambling;
8. to cooperate with institutions from other countries and international organisations that carries out supervision and control over the gaming business.

Licensing of lotteries and gambling

Law "On Lotteries and Gambling" provides that gambling and lotteries in Latvia can be organised only after receiving a special permission (license). The Inspection regularly considers applications and all the necessary documents to pass a decision either to issue a license or motivates its refusal to issue a license. The special permissions (licenses) for organisation of lotteries and gambling are renewed and reregistered.

A net of casinos, arcades and cafes should be formed, and high demands for the gaming equipment, its placing and the level of service should be established, as well as the possibility for the persons under the age of 18 to participate in gambling should be excluded..

It is necessary to work out a unified gambling accounting system, thus not allowing avoiding paying taxes and ensuring additional revenues in the state budget.

When making amendments in the legislative acts regulating lotteries and gambling the definition of lotteries and gambling should be made more precise, establishing that games organised in the Internet and those organised through telephone lines for charge should also be licensed, thus securing additional income of gambling taxes in the state budget from those games.

As in Latvia the organisation of advertising campaigns and selling of goods using elements of lotteries has intensified, and then legal basis for the organisation of such lotteries should be established.

To ensure a complete follow-up on organisation of lotteries and gambling, it is necessary in cooperation with State Revenue Service to introduce a unified computerized information system, as well as to improve the order of registration, control and issuing of labelling marks for gambling equipment.

To improve control and supervision of lotteries and gambling, there is a need to make the rights and duties of officials when carrying out check-ups of gambling sites more explicit.

Taking into consideration the fact that the Latvian lotteries and gambling market was formed recently and it is developing continuously a more intensified attention should be paid to the improvement of knowledge of officials and acquiring foreign experience in the sphere of control and supervision over organisation of lotteries and gambling.

Laws and Regulations

The system of organising gaming in Slovenia is regulated with the 1995 Gaming Act, which was amended in October 2001 and in October 2003 (consolidating text is published in the Official Gazette of the Republic of Slovenia, no. 134/03).

On the basis of this Act the following regulations were issued:

1. Regulation on technical requirements for gaming devices and conformity assessment procedure

2. Regulation on Institutions for Issuing Gaming Device Test Reports

3. Regulation on the supervisory information system of gaming device

4. Regulation on organising games on slot machines in gaming halls

5. Regulation on licences for employees in casino industry

6. Regulation on detailed criteria that need to be fulfilled by permanent organisers of classical games

7. Regulation on societies and non-profit humanitarian organisations that are allowed to organise classical gaming occasionally

Casino games in the territory of the Republic of Slovenia can only be organised in casinos (all casino games) and in gaming halls (only games on slot machines) by a company seated in the Republic of Slovenia to which a concession has been awarded by the government.

The government decides upon awarding a gaming concession on the basis of a discretionarional right considering a wide range of different circumstances (e. g. impact of gaming on social, cultural and natural environment, development of gaming activity, extent of gaming in a certain area, gaming experiences of the applicant...).

According to the Gaming Act the Government of the Republic of Slovenia can award 15 concessions for casinos and 45 concessions for gaming halls at the most.

Law does not limit the number of concessions awarded to one company and in practice one company has more concessions, either concessions for organising games in casinos or concessions for organising games in gaming halls.

Gaming halls (arcades) in the territory of the Republic of Slovenia were introduced with the 2001 Amendment of the Gaming Act. A gaming hall should have a minimum of 50 and a maximum of 200 slot machines and should be located in an object of tourist infrastructure. (There is no restriction on the number of slots in casino.)

Regarding the casino’s ownership the Gaming Act defines possible shareholders of a concessionaire for a casino, which has to be a joint-stock company. That is to say that apart from the Republic of Slovenia, local communities and legal entities, owned or founded by the Republic of Slovenia, shareholders of a concessionaire can also be (up to 49 % of shares) companies, organised as a joint-stock company, which fulfil certain conditions set by the Gaming Act (e.g. these companies should make income predominantly from the activity of banking, insurance business, tourism, financial brokerage or activity of investment or pension funds). There is no prescribed ownership structure for a concessionaire for a gaming hall, which can be a joint-stock company or a company with limited responsibility.

An approval of the Minister of finance is needed for the purchase of the normal shares of a concessionaire. Such an approval is needed also for any change in the ownership of a concessionaire for a gaming hall. There has also been adopted a special regulation specifying the documentation and the procedure for approving such a purchase (Official Gazette of the Republic of Slovenia, no. 127/03).

According to the Gaming Act each gaming device should be certified that conforms to technical and other standards. At the end of June 2002 the Minister of Finance has authorized an institution that issues gaming device test reports.

Specific jobs in casinos and gaming halls require a licence according to the 2001 Amendment of the Gaming Act. These jobs are: managers of casino, croupiers, games leaders, people performing internal control and chief and assistant cashiers. The licences are issued by a special commission, which is composed by three members (2 are appointed by the Minister of Finance, whilst the third one is a member of casino Association).

Currently there are no special restrictions on advertising and opening hours in the Gaming Act, but all the organisers need to respect general legislation on these items that is valid in the territory of the Republic of Slovenia.

Classical gaming

According to the Gaming Act classical gaming is:

1. Numerical lotteries
2. Lotteries with momentarily known prizes
3. Quiz lotteries
4. Bingo
5. Lotto
6. Sports bets
7. Sports pools
8. Raffles
9. Other similar games

Classical gaming can be organised permanently by a joint-stock company seated in the Republic of Slovenia to which a concession has been awarded by the government. Permanent classical games (all sorts of classical gaming) can only be organised by two organisers at the most.

Classical gaming (numerical lotteries, bingo and raffles) can also be organised occasionally (once a year) in association with sport competitions by societies and non-profit humanitarian organisations that are based in the Republic of Slovenia and defined by the government (public interest) on the basis of a licence issued by the minister of finance.

Chapter 3.
Research Recommendations

The recommendations presented in this Chapter are in line with those given in the report "Analysis of the EU15 Non-profit Sector for Monitoring and Control".

As a main outcome of the research work, we recommend a uniform system of registration, monitoring and control of the non-profit sector in Europe (EU 25) which could have positive impact on the capacity to control, as well as, on the transparency of the non-profit sector.

Seeing that most\textsuperscript{212} countries recognize both associations and foundations, it is necessary to define and standardise these forms, which will limit the need for additional, different organisational forms.

1. Registration

A single and uniform registration system for registration of non-profit organisations needs to be implemented. We would like to stress that registration of the NGOs must be obligatory while laws governing non-profit sector should be written and administered so that it is relatively quick, clear, informative and inexpensive for all persons to register or incorporate a non-profit organisation as a legal person without unnecessary difficulties. At the same time the laws must define more precisely and narrowly the bases upon which registration may be refused.

The unique registration requirements and set of minimum requirements for documents (to be submitted to the registration authority) should be available to the public and contain at least the following information:

- Entity establishment act
- Entity statutes
- In-depth information about the representatives
- In-depth information regarding entity set.

Registration authorities must be transferred to courts or to other less politically suggestible bodies to debar line ministries and the Ministry of Interior of registration authority for NGOs.

Also a single, national registry of non-profit sector that is accessible to the public (in addition to any local public registries that may exist) must be created. Creation of public registries of NGOs will promote transparency. Registration of the NGOs should be obligatory and the register should include information about:

1. the registry code and consecutive numbers of registry entries;
2. date of establishment;
3. type and purpose of the entity
4. the name of the entity;
5. the location and address of the entity;
6. Information on the representatives of the entity including the names, personal identification codes and extent of power in the entity;
7. authorisations (licenses) that have been given to the entity
8. references to earlier and later entries, and notations.

2. Accreditation

Accreditation of entities in the non profit sector may be used as a prerequisite for receiving subsidies from governments, institutions and private donors. However, since accreditation is voluntary by definition, it does not provide such a strong safeguard as the legal provision of a registration system.

\textsuperscript{212} Malta is preparing some legislation in order to regulate non-profit sector.
CHAPTER 3
RESEARCH RECOMMENDATIONS

3. Monitoring

The laws in the area of governance should set minimum standards for self-governance, which the organisations themselves can impose by self-regulatory mechanisms. Usage of self-regulatory mechanisms, such as codes of conduct, must be widespread in the countries of EU 25.

We would recommend a single monitoring system with uniform monitoring criteria. This will allow creating an overview of the activities of the entities of the non-profit sector during the monitored period and provide proof and transparency on the use of funds. It follows that to the maximum feasible extent, all reports required of NGOs should be simple to complete and as uniform as possible. Organisations receiving tax benefits or public donations are typically required to prepare reports. The laws must design unified reporting requirements to meet legitimate interests.

Also NGOs should be required to publish or make available to the public a report of their general finances and operations; this report may be less detailed than the reports filed with the supervisory organ. Reporting requirements should contain provisions to protect the privacy of donors and recipients.

Transparency in non-profit organisations is important to ensure that whatever legitimate subject outside the organisation can get an insight into its work and thus guarantee the organisation’s reliability.

4. Taxation

In most countries, NGOs receive some degree of exemption from taxation. There must be a link between the tax treatment related to the activities of the NGO and the challenge to ensure proper implementation of NGOs policies.

Tax authorities must be treated as a prime source of information regarding non-profit activities. The tax system already provides powerful motivation for non-profit organisation to seek for certification in order to receive tax incentives. NGOs and their activities should be given preferential treatment under a value added tax (VAT) and other taxes (e.g. income taxes) provided that appropriate limitations are in place to guard against fraud and abuse.

5. Gambling

The gambling sector could be used as a practical example on how to regulate the sector allowing for, on the one hand, to be able to run their business properly and, on the other hand, to be sufficiently regulated.
Chapter 4.
Conclusions

Legislation regarding NGOs in EU 10 has been under continuous development. Recently changes have been taking place in many of the countries, but much needs to be done to prevent fraudulent use of funds in the non-profit sector.

There is general requirement to regulate the non-profit sector. A set of risk indicators may be created to identify NGOs which may be at a higher risk of being misused. The establishment of a centralised body with the purpose of monitoring and controlling of the non-profit sector could lead to transparency in the sector. In addition, uniform standards of transparency and accountability for NGOs could help minimise the risk of misuse of the non-profit sector.

NGOs must be supported as much as possible but at the same time there is a need for further regulation. NGOs must become fully “visible” and transparent actors in the arena of non-profit activities in EU 25.

A Lottery or other like Game is considered to be such game, in which any physical person who paid a deposit (wager), the return of which is not guaranteed to the participant, may take part in on voluntary basis. The win or loss is by the virtue of a random chance or any circumstance or event unknown beforehand, which, however, is specified by the operator in advance in the game terms and conditions (referred to as the "Gambling Scheme" henceforth). It does not matter whether the game is played with the use of mechanical, electromechanical, electronic or other devices.

The circumstances determining the winnings (the outcome of the drawing of lots, sport matches, horse races or other events to be run) may not be known to anyone in advance and they must be of such nature that they cannot be influenced by either the operator or the bettor.

The probability of winnings, with lotteries according to Section 2 Letters a) and d) and with tombolas according to Section 2 Letter b), may not be less than 1 : 200.

A lottery or a similar game of chance shall be deemed a contest, survey and any other activity for prizes, where the operator undertakes to pay the participants, determined by a draw or some other random selection method, prices in cash, deposit books, securities, insurance etc., and real estate, and in which participation is conditional upon purchase of specific goods, services, or buying some other product and documenting the purchase to the operator, or entering into a contract relationships with a provider of goods, services or some other product, or participation in a promotion or advertisement events organised by the provider or operator, also indirectly through a third party (hereinafter "consumer lotteries"). Consumer lotteries shall also include contests, surveys and other activities for prizes in which the operator, under the aforementioned conditions, undertakes to provide to the participants performance in kind, services or prizes comprising goods and products, etc., provided the sum total of all in-kind prizes in all games organised by the operator exceeds 200,000.- CZK in any calendar year and the value of a single prize exceeds the amount of 20,000.- CZK. Organisation of consumer lotteries is forbidden. Contests, surveys and other activities for prizes pursuant to either of the sentences one or two above, organised by a single operator, in which the sum total of in-kind prizes in a given calendar year does not exceed the amount of 200,000.- CZK and the value of a single prize does not exceed the amount of 20,000.- CZK shall be reported to the financial office of jurisdiction. The applicable procedure shall be specified by the Ministry of Finance (hereinafter "Ministry") by a Decree.

Lotteries and other like games of chance that do not provide to all participants equal conditions including the possibility to win are banned.

Only a legal entity, which has its registered address in the territory of the Czech Republic, and which was granted the license to operate a lottery or other like game by the competent authority, may run a lottery or other like game.

Only a physical person that is over eighteen years of age and paid the deposit (wager) to the operator in advance, either in cash or non-cash, in accordance with the Gambling Scheme, may become a participant (the "bettor" henceforth) in a lottery or other like game. Persons under eighteen years of age are prohibited to participate in lotteries or other like games. The operator of a lottery or other like game must adopt such measures so that such persons could not participate in game. For this purpose, the operator is entitled to ask such a person for proving its identity through its identity card.

Section 2

Lotteries and other like games include mainly:

Money lotteries or lotteries for prizes in kind, with which a given number of tickets bearing serial numbers are issued by the operator according to the Gambling Scheme. If the tickets are divided into a number of series, then each series must include the same number of lottery tickets and each ticket must bear the indication of both the serial number and the series. The sale price of the ticket of each series must be the same in every series. All tickets, which have been issued are included in drawing.
Tombolas, in which only the tickets that were sold are included in drawing. The tickets are sold and the prizes are given on the day and at the spot of drawing.

Numerical lotteries, with which neither the number of participants nor the amount of game surety is specified beforehand, while the amount of game surety is taken as the multiplication of the issued tickets and the sale price per one ticket. The prize is calculated from the number of winners and the aggregate deposits (wagers) by means of a ratio determined in advance, or alternately, it can be calculated by means of a multiple of the deposit (wager), according to what number of digits were guessed by a participant from the limited number of digits that was drawn according to the Gambling Scheme.

Instant lotteries with which a participant learns whether it won or not after it removes the indicated cover of a particular box of the lottery ticket or lot (which is covered by the time of purchase) forthwith after it is purchased.

Betting games that are operated be means of electronic or electromechanically controlled gaming machines or other like devices (referred to as the "gaming machines" henceforth).

Betting games operated with the use of a special type of tokens bearing the combination of fifteen digits in the numerical series from one up to ninety, while neither the number of participants nor the game surety amount is known in advance. The drawing of lots takes place in the public with the use of a mechanical device and it consists in the gradual drawing of lots with digits from one up to ninety. The prize is calculated from the aggregate amount of deposits - according to the type of the winning, and in each round in dependence on the outcome of the drawing of lots. The terms and conditions of game are set forth in detail in the Gambling Scheme.

Betting games in which a win depends on guessing the order in which racehorses arrive at the goal post (hereinafter "horse betting") and the win depends on the proportion of the winners to the sum total of collected bets and the proportion of wins determined in advance, or the win is proportional to the odds at which the bet was made and the amount of the bet.

Section 3

The subject of the prize may be:

with monetary and instant lotteries, lotteries with digits and betting games solely and exclusively the money in cash unless the prizes in other movable assets are licensed by the Ministry;

force of this Act.

(2) In the case of a resident legal person or a branch of a foreign company whose financial year does not coincide with the calendar year, the part of the financial year preceding the date of entry into force of this Act is deemed to be an independent period of taxation for which an income tax return shall be submitted and income tax paid pursuant to the provisions of subsection
(1). The percentage rates prescribed in subsection
17 (4) and subsection 20 (1) of the Income Tax Act in force before the entry into force of this Act are applied in proportion to the number of months in the period of taxation.

(3) Income tax which is calculated on the basis of the Act in force before the entry into force of this Act and which is received by the Tax and Customs Board after the entry into force of this Act is transferred by the Tax and Customs Board to state and local budgets pursuant to § 8 of the Income Tax Act in force before the entry into force of this Act.

(17.12.2003 entered into force 01.01.2004 - RT I calculated depreciation on the basis of § 17 of the Income Tax Act in force before the entry into assets has not been paid in full, the amount deducted from income shall not exceed the amount paid for the fixed assets. The adjusted cost of each fixed asset shall be calculated fixed assets

(1) A taxpayer who is a natural person and owns fixed assets on which he or she has calculated depreciation on the basis of § 17 of the Income Tax Act in force before the entry into force of this Act shall calculate the gain or loss (§ 37) from the transfer of such fixed assets on the basis of the adjusted cost of the fixed assets. The adjusted cost is deemed to be the value of fixed assets carried over to the next period of taxation, as stated in the tax depreciation table of the tax return prepared for the period of taxation which ended by the date of entry into force of this Act. In the case of fixed assets classified under Depreciation Group II, the adjusted cost of each fixed asset is calculated proportionally according to the ratio of the acquisition cost of the corresponding fixed asset to the total acquisition cost of all fixed assets classified under Depreciation Group II.

(2) If a taxpayer who is a natural person has made deductions from taxable income on the basis of subsection 18(1) of the Income Tax Act in force before the entry into force of this Act, the provisions of subsection 18(4) of the Income Tax Act in force before the entry into force of this Act are applied to the transfer or taking into personal use (subsections 37(4) and (5)) of such fixed assets within two years after their acquisition, improvement or supplementation. The amount of the deductions made from taxable income is added to business income derived during the period of taxation in which the fixed assets were transferred or taken into personal use.

(06.12.2000 entered into force 01.01.2001 - RT I 2000, 102, 667)

If the taxpayer has deductions which can be carried forward on the basis of subsection 21(1) of the Income Tax Act in force before the entry into force of this Act, the taxpayer may reduce the amount subject to income tax in accordance with this subsection by the deductions to be carried forward. The balance of deductions to be carried forward on the basis of subsection 21(1) of the Income Tax Act in force before the entry into force of this Act is also reduced by the total amount of the deductions specified in the previous sentence.

(14.06.2000 entered into force 01.01.2001 - RT I 2000, 58, 377)

The income tax deductible is determined such that the total amount of income tax of the company, calculated on taxable income and adjusted by incentives in the income tax returns submitted for the periods of taxation of the years 1994-1999, is divided by the total amount of the lines “net profit of the accounting year” in the balance sheets of the company’s annual reports of the years 1994-1999, from which the size of bonus issues carried out in the years 1994-1999 on account of the net profit of the same years is deducted, and the resulting amount is multiplied by the amount of the dividends paid.

(06.12.2000 entered into force 01.01.2001 - RT I 2000, 102, 667)

The remaining amount of transferred income tax resulting from such deduction may be deducted from the income tax payable pursuant to subsection 50 (1) during subsequent periods of taxation.

(24.10.2001 entered into force 01.01.2003 - RT I 2001, 91, 544)

(7) A közalapítványhoz - ha törvény eltérően nem rendelkezik - bárki feltétel nélkül csatlakozhat, az alapító okirat azonban előírhatja, hogy a csatlakozás elfogadásához a kezelő szerv (szervezet) jóváhagyása szükséges.
(8) A kezelő szerv (szervezet) a közalapítvány működéséről kötelez az alapítónak évente beszámolni és gazdálkodásának legfontosabb adatait nyilvánosságra kell hoznia. A közalapítvány gazdálkodásának törvényességét és célszerűségét - a helyi önkormányzat képviselő-testülete által alapított közalapítvány kivételével - az Állami Számvéveőszék ellenőrzi.
(9) A bíróság a közalapítványt az alapító kérelmére nemperes eljárásban megszünteti, ha a közfeladat iránti szükséglet megszűnt vagy a közfeladat ellátásának biztosítása más módon, illetőleg más szervezeti keretben hatékonyabban megvalósítható. A közalapítvány megszűnése esetén a közalapítvány vagyona - a hitelezők kielégítése után - az alapítót illeti meg, aki köteles azt a megszűnt közalapítvány céljához hasonló célra fordítani és erről a nyilvánosságot megfelelően tájékoztatni.(10) A külön nem szabályozott kérdésekben a közalapítványra az alapítványra vonatkozó rendelkezéseket kell alkalmazni.

(3) Subject to the provisions of the Data Protection Act, (Cap.440) the Commissioner shall compile and maintain information relating to voluntary organisations which have not enrolled under this Act and shall monitor their activities so as to ensure that the purposes of this Act are attained.
(4) The Commissioner shall endeavour to coordinate efforts by organisations with similar purposes so as to achieve greater concentration of resources and to achieve the benefits of economies of scale and for the avoidance of duplication of efforts.

(5) The Commissioner shall establish systems for communication with, and the support of, citizens of Malta who may be volunteers overseas, and the Minister shall have the power to make such regulations as may be appropriate from time to time to regulate and support such activity.

(6) The Commissioner shall seek to encourage an environment where the credibility and good reputation of voluntary organisations is continually enhanced through high standards of operation of such organisations and their administrators, of transparency and public awareness and generally of proper accountability.

Public statements.

7. The Commissioner may publish, by advertisement or otherwise, any information about an organisation, whether enrolled in terms of this Act or not, or about any person purporting to act on behalf of a voluntary organisation, when it appears to him to be in the interest of the public or of the organisation itself: Provided that, except in cases which in the opinion of the Commissioner are urgent or may involve fraud, before publishing such information he shall notify in writing the administrators of the organisation with the proposed text. The administrators shall have five days from receipt of such notice to discuss the same with the Commissioner and unless there is agreement between the Commissioner and the administrators on such remedial action as may be required to be taken in the circumstances, either party may apply to the Board of Appeal to confirm, amend or refuse the advertisement, as the case may be, and the decision of the Board shall be final.

PART 4

8. (1) There shall be a Register of Voluntary Organisations (hereinafter referred to as the “Register”) which shall be maintained by the Commissioner and shall contain the following information, supported by the documentation referred to in paragraphs (f) to (h) as the same may be amended or updated from time to time:

(2) The Register and supporting documentation shall be available to the public.

(3) The Register shall be divided into two parts:

(b) Part B shall include all other voluntary organisations which are established for any other lawful purpose, not being a private purpose, and being non-profit making.

(4) Organisations shall be classified in each Part of the Register according to their principal purposes in such a manner as the Commissioner may deem appropriate.

(5) On enrolment, the Commissioner shall allocate a unique number to the voluntary organisation preceded by the letters “VO” and followed by either the letter “A” or “B” in accordance with the Part of the Register in which the organisation is enrolled and that number shall at all times be quoted by the organisation on any published materials, letters, notices, advertisements and other documents issued by the organisation.

Application to enrol.
9. (1) Every voluntary organisation may apply for enrolment in the established form and it shall be accompanied by such documents as are required by this Act or as may be prescribed by any regulations made thereunder.

(2) In considering any application, the Commissioner may request the applicant to provide all information reasonably available about:

(a) the promoters, the founders, the administrators, the donors and the beneficiaries;

(b) the assets and liabilities;

(c) the past, if any, present and intended activities of the organisation; and

(d) the purposes of the organisation.

(3) In considering such application, the Commissioner shall conclude:

(a) whether the applicant is eligible for enrolment;

(b) in which Part of the Register an applicant is eligible to be enrolled;

(c) the classification of the organisation’s purposes, and shall notify the applicant in writing of his preliminary conclusion and provide the applicant with at least ten days notice to make written representations on his conclusions prior to determining the application according to this article.

(4) The Commissioner shall give due regard to all representations made and in the absence thereof shall proceed with the determination of the application.

(5) The Commissioner shall seek to determine all applications within three months of the date of submission, including the completion of the preliminary process referred to in sub-article (3) of this article, and failure to so determine shall be deemed to mean that enrolment has been refused. The applicants shall enjoy a right of appeal against such decision in terms of article 18 of this Act.

(6) The Commissioner shall not enrol any voluntary organisation the administrators of which are persons who do not qualify to be administrators of organisations in terms of applicable law.

10. (1) Upon being satisfied that the organisation is eligible for enrolment in terms of this Act, the Commissioner shall:

(a) enter such particulars in the Register;

(b) issue a certificate of enrolment with the identification number of the organisation; and

(c) specify its legal form and enrolment classification.

(2) Certificates of enrolment are deemed to be public instruments and shall be surrendered to the Commissioner on simple demand in writing.

(3) The certificate of enrolment in terms of this article shall not determine the fiscal status of an organisation or the taxability or otherwise of its income and transactions.

Refusal to enrol.

11. (1) The Commissioner may refuse to enrol an organisation if it appears to him that the requirements of this Act are not satisfied and in so doing he shall state the reasons for such refusal in writing.

(2) The Commissioner may also refuse enrolment if the name of the organisation is already used by another organisation, even if not enrolled, or if the proposed name is offensive or is likely to deceive.

Organisations in difficulty.

12. (1) In carrying out his duties, the Commissioner may also recommend the winding up of any voluntary organisation and may, on the specific request of the administrators of an organisation which may be in financial difficulty, appoint external administrators on a temporary basis in order to review the circumstances and make recommendations to him on the future of such organisation.

(2) In the case of enrolled voluntary organisations, the Commissioner shall seek to assist the organisation to implement solutions or achieve compliance prior to issuing any Recommendation or order in accordance with this article, article 13 and article 14 of this Act.

Suspension of activities of an organisation.

13. (1) The Commissioner may order the suspension of activities of a voluntary organisation for periods of thirty days by the issue of a suspension order in those cases where the Commissioner has sufficient grounds to suspect that an organisation:

(a) is not pursuing the social purposes for which it was established and in so doing it is misleading the general public;

(b) is carrying out unlawful or immoral activities;

(c) is materially failing to comply with the provisions of its statute or of this Act or any regulations issued thereunder;

(d) is misapplying funds, or is using funds or benefits received for purposes other than those for which such funds or benefits were granted;

(e) appears to have continued operating after it has been formally dissolved; or

(f) has not functioned for a period which exceeds twelve consecutive months.

(2) In those cases where a suspension order is issued, the Commissioner shall meet or communicate with the administrators of the organisation as soon as possible to review the situation and to obtain information which may assist him in his considerations.

(3) In the suspension order, the Commissioner may make any appropriate ancillary orders relating to the activities of the organisation.

Cancellation of enrolment.

14. (1) If the Commissioner is satisfied that an enrolled organisation has committed any one of the defaults mentioned in sub-article (1) of article 13, he shall have the power to cancel the enrolment of an organisation by issuing a cancellation order which shall have effect within thirty days from the date of notification of the order to the administrators, or any of them, unless an appeal is filed within such period, in which case it shall have effect from the date established by the Board of Appeal.

(2) The Commissioner shall notify a copy of the cancellation order to the administrators of the organisation at the address provided to the Commissioner.

(3) Until a cancellation order has become final after the lapse of the period stated in sub-article (1) of this article, or pending the determination of any appeal in terms of article 18 of this Act, the affairs of the organisation shall continue to be administered by the administrators who shall carry out only acts of ordinary administration.

(4) Cancellation orders which have become final shall be published in a local newspaper.

Effects of suspension or cancellation of enrolment.

15. (1) In the event of suspension or cancellation of enrolment of an organisation, the administrators shall forthwith surrender to the Commissioner the enrolment certificate of the organisation. Any person failing to surrender such certificate within the time stated in a demand in writing by the Commissioner, shall be guilty of an offence against this Act and shall be liable, on conviction, to a fine (multa) of one hundred liri and a fine (multa) of five liri for every day of default.

(2) In the event of suspension or cancellation of enrolment of an organisation, all privileges, benefits, advantages or entitlements granted to the organisation by virtue of enrolment, shall cease to have effect from the date when the decision to suspend or to cancel becomes final: Provided that such loss of benefits shall not apply to the acts required to liquidate and dissolve the organisation, including any transfers of property to other organisations as required by the statute of the organisation or the provisions of applicable law.

(3) Cancellation for the reasons mentioned in sub-paragraphs (a) to (d) of subarticle (1) of article 13 of this Act shall entitle the Commissioner to demand the refund of, or fair compensation for, any benefits unjustly received by the organisation or any other person by virtue of its enrolment under this Act.
(4) In the event of suspension of an organisation which has not been enrolled, such organisation shall suspend its activities, except those which are urgent and necessary to preserve assets or rights upon notice to the administrators or any one of them, or in their absence such person who appears to the Commissioner to be carrying on activities, and this until a final decision is taken as to whether it may continue to act or otherwise. Any person failing to cease activities within three working days from the receipt of the request made to him by the Commissioner to that effect, shall be guilty of an offence against this Act and, on conviction, shall be liable to a fine (multa) of one hundred liri and a fine (multa) of five liri for every day of default.

(b) Civil Code (Amendment)

INFORMATION ON THE PROVISIONS OF THE CIVIL CODE (AMENDMENT) ACT IN

SO FAR AS THEY ARE RELEVANT TO VOLUNTARY ORGANISATIONS

Introduction and Scope

1. When this legislative project started, the idea was to address the problem of the lack of legal personality of Foundations and Associations in the same law as that dealing with Voluntary Organisations.

2. This approach, however, was not found to be appropriate for the voluntary sector for various reasons, including the following:

- not all Voluntary Organisations require legal personality;
- in the case of Associations, which in effect are created in the exercise of the freedom of association protected by the Constitution, registration as a legal person cannot be imposed as a condition for the exercise of such right;
- not all Foundations and Associations are voluntary or ‘non-profit making’ structures. Foundations are used by the State and by private interests (just as limited liability companies are used by such interests) and Associations can be used for the carrying out of a trade or profession and also be ‘private interest’;
- all Voluntary Organisations which interface with the public or the State need to be subject to rules on transparency and supervision and this irrespective of whether they are registered as legal persons or not;
- dealing with registration for legal personality (which has its own formal and administrative rules which are purely mechanical) at the same time as dealing with enrolment of Voluntary Organisations (which seeks a more value laden approach resulting in prioritizing State support balanced against standards of transparency and supervision) results in unduly complex legislation;
- a complex law would not be of benefit to the voluntary sector as it would not achieve the goal of a workable and supportive law for this important sector.

3. A decision was therefore taken that the Continental approach should be followed and the issues of legal personality, Foundations and Associations be addressed in the Civil Code in a general manner. These would be applicable both to Voluntary Organisations as well as State and private interest Organisations. The advantage lies in the fact that general legislation with the particular elements of interest only to Voluntary Organisations will not be burdened with technical detail.

4. The provisions of the Civil Code are, therefore, focused on dealing with legal persons in general and addressing, in a non-sectorial manner, a problematic vacuum in Maltese law relating to Foundations and Associations, two forms of legal structures which are very commonly used in Malta. These are used by all sectors of society and need to be addressed in this manner.

5. The purpose of this appendix is not to explain or expand on all the provisions of the proposed Civil Code but only to highlight the areas of relevance to the voluntary sector. This will enable readers of this White Paper, to which this appendix is attached, to put the discussion in context of the correct legal principles. The Civil Code also deals with issues of liability and the effects of non-registration as well as dissolution and winding up of organisations.

Principles of Legal Personality

6. To date legal personality is not dealt with in any part of Maltese law in a homogenous manner. There are many provisions in many laws granting legal personality by virtue of the laws themselves or by catering for a registration procedure or, in some cases, making it the effect of the issue of a license by the State. In case of Foundations, legal personality has been recognised by the courts on the basis of custom. In the case of Associations there have been many conflicting and ambiguous judgements of the Courts over the years but it is now almost universally accepted that associations of persons should have legal personality.

7. The situation is, however, very unsatisfactory and the proposed provisions of the Civil Code lay down the principle that legal personality arises only through an act of recognition by the State. In case of Voluntary Organisations this means registration in terms of law. Companies are registered at the Companies Registry to obtain legal personality. Voluntary Organisations will need to register at the Public Registry to obtain legal personality.

8. It should be emphasised that it is not mandatory for an organisation, other than a Foundation, to register. Foundations are obliged to register because Foundations consist of a patrimony of things. However Associations of persons do not need to register. It is not mandatory for an organisation to obtain legal personality for it to exist.

9. ‘Unregistered organisations’ which do not have legal personality are addressed in the Civil Code. This is a very important innovation because for the first time the state of fact in the case of hundreds of organisations will finally be addressed in a clear manner. Participants in ‘unregistered organisations’ will know what their powers, rights, duties and liabilities are. With the new provisions of the Civil Code it is naturally expected that many Associations will indeed register in order to obtain the benefits of legal personality.

Types of Organisations

10. Organisations are classified into those set up for a private benefit and those which are set up as ‘non-profit’ organisations with a social or other purpose. This is the basic distinction which then allows the latter group to be called ‘Voluntary Organisations’ and are dealt with in the special law called the Voluntary Organisations Act.

11. As with any organisation, Voluntary Organisations must respect certain basic structural rules:

- they must have a name;
- they must have an address in Malta;
- they act through their organs such as boards, committees and general meetings;
- they are bound by the acts of designated legal and judicial representatives;
- they cannot act as curators or tutors;
- they can benefit under wills. In this case, for instance, the law imposes that they must be registered before they can inherit, thus ensuring basic levels of transparency through which the implementation of the testators’ intentions can be monitored;
- legal personality cannot be used against a person in good faith if it is set up to perpetrate fraud, abuse of right or non-observance of a rule of law of mandatory application or of public order. This again is a very important innovation in our law as it ensures that no-one can create legal screens for illegitimate purposes.

12. Recognizing the fact that to date there are many organisations which exist and operate in Malta and enjoy legal personality as a result of customary law and judicial interpretation, the proposed Civil Code seeks to preserve the existing status quo. In the case of Foundations, all Foundations (except Pious Foundations and marriage legacies) will be required to register within the stated period. If they do not register
ANNEX B.
NATIONAL LEGISLATION AND OTHER MATERIAL CONCERNING NATIONAL LAW

within the period prescribed in the law, although they will continue to enjoy legal personality, they will thereafter be treated as 'unregistered entities' with the relatively negative effects implied.

Administrators

13. Organisations are administered by administrators who are appointed by or in terms of the statute. The amendments indicate the persons who are not permitted to act as administrators of organisations. Administrators can be removed from office in terms of the Statute or by the Board of Appeal. Among their other duties, administrators must keep books of account and prepare annual reports relating to the organisation.

The Registrar, Registration and Board of Appeal

14. A Registrar of Legal Persons will be appointed to administer the registration system at the Public Registry.

15. Registration is made according to the legal form chosen for the organisation. When a law already provides a registration system for an organisation (e.g. a company which is another type of association of persons) then the organization cannot form part of this Register. The implication of this in effect is that, in the main, Foundations and 'Non-Profit' Associations will use this registration system. However, it could also be used by civil partnerships, as to date there is no registration system for these. Foundations have a different legal structure to Associations and that has its effect on the registration procedures and documents to be submitted.

16. It is possible that some ‘social purpose’ or ‘non-profit’ organisations already have legal personality because they are licensed under special laws. The obvious example is schools which are licensed under the Education Act. They receive legal personality automatically and without any form of registration. This is not consistent with the principles of the Civil Code, as proposed, since this method does not achieve transparency. These organisations too are therefore expected to register within the period provided in the Civil Code.

17. The same issue arises regarding unions and employer Associations which may be ‘non-profit making’ and may not have legal personality. Although the Employment and Industrial Relations Act solves problems arising from lack of legal personality, Unions and Employers’ Associations may wish to register and can do so under the Civil Code as they are not registered elsewhere in the manner meant to create legal personality. Registration in their case does not cater for public accessibility to the registration records, which is the basic condition for eligibility to certain privileges at law.

18. When a foreign or international organisation is established in Malta it will be required to have a resident representative for purposes of compliance in Malta.

19. The provisions of the Civil Code propose the establishment of a Board of Appeal to deal with all contestations relating to registration, removal of administrators and certain other disputes. There is an appeal to the Courts on points of law and when there is a determination of a civil right.

Unregistered Entities

20. This is one of the important innovations of the proposed Civil Code and it is of relevance to the voluntary sector. Although the law is introducing a registration system it is not necessarily the case that all organisations will register and obtain legal personality, but that does not mean the organisations do not exist as a matter of fact. This new provision, which is based on Italian law, looks at the state of fact and gives it legal effect.

21. This is based on the theory of ‘appropriation of assets for a purpose’ being capable of creating a legally relevant effect and is consistent with what the Maltese Courts have been trying to do over the years to support these organisations in achieving their purposes. The Courts have held that organisations may lease property and enter into contracts although they do not necessarily have legal personality. Some legal provisions, such as in the Employment and Industrial Relations Act, have even tried to solve this problem. This Act also addresses this issue of lack of legal personality by giving relevant Associations powers to carry out legal acts.
22. For an entity to exist and be recognised as existing as a matter of fact, it must have at least a written statute which must state its purpose and define the legal powers it needs to achieve that purpose.

23. The proposed law then states that such entities may carry out all the legal actions, through their administrators, to achieve their purposes. However, as they are not legal persons they do not have their own patrimony, which means that the assets are owned by the promoters 'in co-ownership'. This rule does not apply to 'non-profit' or 'social purpose' organisations where there are no private interests and, consequently, assets are held only for the purpose for which they have been dedicated and cannot be given to any private person.

24. The administrators and promoters of 'unregistered organisations' will be personally liable, jointly and severally, for the various matters outlined in the law including the duty:

- to keep the property of the entity identified as such and distinct from their own personal property and other property they may be administering;
- to preserve any property received; and
- to apply assets to the fulfilment of the aims expressly stated in the statute of the entity;
- to ensure, to the extent possible considering their functions, observance of the law applicable to the organisation and its activities.

25. This might appear to be harsh. The aim is to ensure that promoters and administrators of organisations do not remain completely outside the purview of the supervisory authorities of the country, away from the review by the counterparts to contracts and the enquiring public. As these organisations are totally non-transparent the persons involved in them must bear the responsibilities. Naturally the assets of the organisation are used first to fulfil liabilities before one moves on to the promoters and the administrators. Founders, donors and beneficiaries are never liable as they are not involved in administration.

26. When the liability of administrators is governed by a special law which may be applicable to the ‘unregistered organisations’, such as is the case with Unions and Employers' Associations under the Employment and Industrial Relations Act, then that special law prevails.

27. Unregistered entities may not create other unregistered entities.

28. It should be noted that some entities, although not registered, will still not be treated as ‘unregistered organisations’ for the purposes of this law. These include:

- any organisation which is not permitted to register as it is already registered pursuant to a special law regulating its form;
- Pious Foundations, although not registered;
- marriage legacies, although not registered; and,
- public organisations, which shall be regulated by any special law applicable to their particular form.

29. Most of the above are not Voluntary Organisations. However, ‘Pious Foundations’ are likely to qualify as such. In this case, Pious Foundations fall under the supervisory authority of the Catholic Church in Malta and are bound by Canon Law. As there are hundreds of these Foundations varying greatly in size, purpose and effect, it has been suggested that they should not be governed by the provisions of the Civil Code and should continue to be governed by the applicable religious laws. It should be emphasised that there is nothing to bar them from registering as legal persons if they wish to do so, in which case they shall be bound to comply with all the applicable rules.

Liability Of Persons Involved in Registered Organisations and of the Organisations Themselves

30. This is probably the second most serious cause of ambiguity in the voluntary sector, after lack of legal personality. This is the liability of persons involved in organisations, be they founders, members, administrators, donors or beneficiaries. These provisions now lay down clear principles.
ANNEX B.
NATIONAL LEGISLATION AND OTHER MATERIAL CONCERNING NATIONAL LAW

31. The proposed Civil Code outlines the rules on liability of the organisations themselves. This provision states the obvious fact that organisations are liable for their own obligations. It then deals with specific situations which are not so relevant for the voluntary sector other than the one relating to groups of Organisations where there is no cross liability for different members of the group of organisations.

Public Collections

32. Only registered organisations having legal personality can engage in public collections. This is the case because it is only registered organisations which have the sufficient level of transparency as a result of the public registration of their statute, their administrators, their accounts and reports and any relevant changes to their organisation.

33. ‘Unregistered organisations’ cannot therefore make public collections and this is expected to be one of the determining factors when organisations consider whether to register or not.

Foundations and Associations

34. A Foundation is dedicated to a purpose for the benefit of persons and administered by administrators. In the case of Voluntary Organisations, the main concern is purpose Foundations. There are many organisations in Malta and several carry different names – institutes, agencies, funds, and so on – and all these are included in the definition even if they have different descriptions. The only similar structures not included are charitable trusts as these are governed by a totally different law although there is a natural connection between these two laws, given that Foundations for a 'social purpose' have an identical purpose as do charitable trusts.

35. All Foundations must register as legal persons and have no choice in the matter. These are artificial persons and are treated as persons because of their distinct patrimony dedicated to the purpose for which they are established. Registration is necessary to establish the extent of this patrimony given that there is no liability towards third parties beyond the patrimony. Registration also caters for transparency in relation to Voluntary Organisations so that members of the public can see that the aims and purposes are being fulfilled and the Inland Revenue can ensure that the fiscal benefits extended by law to these entities, when philanthropic, is justified.

36. Associations are different from Foundations in that they are made up of persons. Persons associate together to achieve the purpose defined in the statute. These are organisations with members and need a democratic structure to determine decision-making powers. In the voluntary sector we find many of these, ranging from band clubs to sports clubs and from charitable to environmental groups. These are usually 'non-profit making' and are not 'owned' by anyone in particular. In the private sector we find professional organisations, such as firms of auditors, lawyers or architects and professional associations, such as the Chamber of Commerce or the Chamber of Advocates. When these are set up to carry on a trade or profession then these are civil partnerships with the owners entitled to the assets and profits. However, when they are set up to educate, promote the ethics or the ideals of the members or to organise activities for members, then they also qualify as Voluntary Organisations. The provisions of the Civil Code cater for all these types as they all share the same legal structure.

Voluntary Organisations in the form of Associations are then further governed by the Voluntary Organisations Act where special rules apply to certain privileges which are appropriate only to 'non-profit making' entities.

37. Hybrid Organisations: Much confusion has arisen over the last decades because of lack of legal provisions in our system and there are Foundations with members and Associations focused on applying a patrimony for a purpose and not for members. There is also a lot of confusion between social, public and charitable purposes on the one hand and private purposes on the other. Public collections are made for specific individuals (primarily for medical needs and health) as though these were for a public purpose. The Civil Code proposals include a provision to deal with this situation and allow organisations some time to restructure if they wish to do so. The provision also permits organisations to continue as they are, as long as they observe the rules for both Foundations and Associations.
38. Segregated Cells: Several Voluntary Organisations have also developed into specific project directions and it is not uncommon to see Foundations within a Foundation but without any formality (for instance a school foundation sets up a gym fund or, as can be evidenced in State foundations such as Sedqa, Appogg and Sapport, under the Foundation for Social Welfare Services). This can happen in private structures as well. In order to facilitate this, the law provides for segregated cells within Foundations. Cells are not legal persons but form part of the main Foundation with the exception that their assets and liabilities are distinct from the main Foundation and other cells so that if it runs out of funds, the others are not affected in any manner. Strict formalities and disclosures apply.

39. Groups: A related concept is groups of organisations, each having distinct legal personality and able to contract with each other. This can be compared to a parent and a subsidiary or a group of affiliated entities.

40. Conversions: The Civil Code provides the facility for the conversion of one type of entity into another. As Trusts and Foundations are very similar in purpose and nature, one not having legal personality and the other one having it, the idea of converting one to another by complying with simple rules provides flexibility where needed. If for instance it is necessary for EU funding to show that an entity has legal personality, a Trust would not be eligible and so it should be possible to convert to a Foundation. There is also the possibility of the State converting its Foundations into agencies, given the draft provisions of the Public Service Act.

41. Amalgamations and Divisions: At present there are no guidelines to assist organisations which wish to amalgamate together or those which wish to become more than one organisation from an original structure. There are no rules on how to terminate organisations in a manner which is transparent and hence satisfactory from a public interest point of view. The proposed Civil Code adopts the solutions used in the Companies Act.

42. Winding up: The last part of the law deals with the dissolution and winding up of organisations, given that there exist no provisions of law on the subject except in the Companies Act which are far too complex for these kinds of legal structures and the sectors in which they operate.

Foundations

43. The proposed Civil Code deal in detail with Foundations. These could be for a private interest with beneficiaries or for a 'social purpose' and established as 'non-profit making'. Most of the rules in this part are more relevant for private interest Foundations as that is the more complex alternative, given that it operates within the law of succession. The following gives some points in brief in so far as Voluntary Organisations formed as Foundations are concerned.

44. Foundations can be created by public deed or will, which must contain statutory information about various matters listed in the law, and must be registered in the Public Registry.

45. Foundations must be established with at least Lm 500 and additional funds can be endowed after establishment.

46. The provisions of the proposed Civil Code also relate to purpose Foundations and these are very relevant for the voluntary sector as they outline how purposes need to be defined and achieved and what happens when the purpose is achieved or becomes impossible. The law also deals with the relationship between the achievement of the purpose and commercial activities which are usually not permitted for Voluntary Organisations. It is possible for a purpose Foundation to have beneficiaries only when the dominant purpose of a Foundation is to support a class of persons which constitute a sector within the community as a whole. In that case the public interest overcomes the problem of private interest of the individual beneficiaries.

47. The provisions then deal with rights of founders, administrators and beneficiaries including the rights of information of beneficiaries. It should be noted that as the Continental Law of Foundations is not very developed in so far as it relates to rights of beneficiaries, the proposed provisions of the Civil Code track those in the Trusts and Trustees Act where beneficiaries are very much the focus. This also results in harmony within the legal system for similar cases.
ASSOCIATIONS

48. The proposed Civil Code also deals with Associations and again here we have a classification where Associations can have different purposes. Some may be of private interest (such as when set up to support a specific person or group of named persons, or when it is set up to carry on a trade or profession) and others can have 'social purposes' or be 'non-profit', even if its purposes are not technically defined as being of a public nature.

49. Private Associations can register under this law and so can 'social purpose' or 'non-profit making' associations but this remains a choice: registration is not mandatory. If registration is opted for then the rules of law must be observed and all information required by law on registration and annually must be filed at the Registry. The law lists those items which must be stated in the statute and hence publicly disclosed for the various public interest reasons which have been mentioned above.

50. These provisions are now more concerned to deal with the fact that there are members and so there are democratic principles which have to be observed. Rules on general meetings, the duties of administrators and the possibility of disputes between members and administrators are more in focus. These provisions are all relevant for the voluntary sector as most Voluntary Organisations are indeed Associations.

CONCLUSION

51. The above are intended to provide information on the provisions of the draft Civil Code (Amendment) Act, 2005 in so far as they are relevant to Voluntary Organisations.

(4) In the case of the exchange of goods or services, the taxable amount shall be the value of the received goods or services.

(5) For the supply of goods or services performed by a taxable person who has not established his business in Slovenia, the taxable amount shall be considered to be everything that constitutes the consideration which the recipient of goods or services has or will have to pay to the supplier.

The deductible proportion shall be finally fixed when the actual volume of transactions in the year for which the deductible proportion is being determined (hereinafter: actual deductible proportion) is known. If it is established that the deduction of input VAT on the basis of the provisional deductible proportion was higher or lower than it should have been with respect to the actual data on volume of transactions in the current year, the input VAT deduction shall be adjusted accordingly in the tax period in which the actual deductible proportion is established.

(6) Notwithstanding the second paragraph of this Article, a taxable person may determine the deductible proportion for each individual area of

The taxable person shall calculate a deductible proportion, chosen pursuant to this paragraph for at least 12 months. If a taxable person wishes to change the method of calculating the deductible proportion again, he must notify this change to the tax authority.

(7) The tax authority may, following the notification made in accordance with the sixth paragraph of this Article prohibit the taxable person from using the chosen method for determining a deductible proportion if a taxable person has chosen a method which does not enable the implementation of the legally defined supervision of the charging and payment of the VAT.

Article 42

(2) If, within the period of five years from the calendar year of the beginning of use of the equipment, changes occur in the conditions, which were during that year decisive for the deduction of input VAT, a correction of the input VAT shall be made for the period following the change. Abstract

The expansion of the European Union marks a changing and defining period for the non-profit sector of the accession countries. The issues related to expansion were numerous and complex. This process has resulted in the governments and parliaments of the accession countries creating institutions and mechanisms to facilitate the integration process.

The work “Analysis of the EU10 Non-Profit Sector for Monitoring and Control” contributes to the main objective of supporting EU regulatory work for the non-profit sector and the transparency and traceability for aid funds. This report is complementary to the report “Analysis of the EU15 Non-profit Sector for Monitoring and Control” which sets out the context of the current work in detail and also contains information regarding the classification and definitions used for the non-profit sector.

Primarily the aim of this work is to present an overview of the non-profit sector in EU10 with regard to the prevention of fraudulent use of funds in the non-profit sector. The basic purpose of this report is to support the EU regulatory work for the charitable/non-profit sector through a comparative analysis of information with a view to standardising terminology, comparing requirements for registration, accreditation, and monitoring. The report also includes an overview of the tax status of Non-Governmental Organisations, as well as short overview of the gambling sector in the EU10.

This work can be seen as an auxiliary means to support transparency and traceability for aid funds. The work presented pertains to the JRC research project “Transparent Aid – A System to Support Monitoring of Aid Funds” (TR-AID) to build automated IT-based tools to support monitoring and control tasks for activities financed through aid funds. TR-AID started in 2004 in the Unit “Support to External Security” of the Institute for the Protection and Security of the Citizen, at JRC-Ispra. The main objective of TR-AID is to contribute towards the effective use of aid funds by helping to avoid the misuse of such funds. The data collection effort that it entails is meant to complement official aid activity databases. Sources of information will include European Commission databases, OECD databases, open sources (e.g. web sites of both non-profit and donor organisations) and third-party databases, such as company directories.

It needs to be noted that due to the language difficulties, the diversity of the sector and the short time available to complete this work, the report may not contain complete information regarding the non-profit sector in the EU10.
The mission of the JRC is to provide customer-driven scientific and technical support for the conception, development, implementation and monitoring of EU policies. As a service of the European Commission, the JRC functions as a reference centre of science and technology for the Union. Close to the policy-making process, it serves the common interest of the Member States, while being independent of special interests, whether private or national.
